WORLD SCIENTISTS MEETING IN VICTORIA

Premier Tolmie And Hinchliffe Take Dual Jobs

Sworn in This Morning As Ministers of Agriculture and Lands Respectively

More Changes In Cabinet In Offing

Reduction to Seven on Salary Promised By Premier Last Year

Two vacant portfolios in the Tolmie cabinet were filled without the calling in of representatives from other groups this morning, when the Premier himself was sworn in as Minister of Agriculture and Lands to fill the post which William Atkinson relinquished yesterday, and Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe was sworn in as Minister of Lands to succeed N. S. Loughheed, who also dropped out of office yesterday.

The Premier will hold the portfolio of Minister of Agriculture as well as discharging his present duties of head of the government and Minister of Railways. Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe now holds the portfolio of Minister of Education and Minister of Lands. They were sworn in at Government House this morning.

As Hon. W. M. Dennis, whose inclusion in the cabinet as representative of labor was announced recently, also formally took over his duties today the cabinet now stands at eight members, with portfolios, and one minister without portfolio.

FURTHER CHANGES EXPECTED
More changes in the personnel of the cabinet must be made to implement the announcement which Premier Tolmie made last September. At that time he said, in a formal announcement, that he would reduce the cabinet from nine members with portfolios and two without portfolio to seven with portfolios and one without portfolio.

With W. C. Shelly, struck out of the list of ministers without portfolio and Hon. R. L. Maitland still a minister without portfolio the latter promise has been carried out. With Hon. W. M. Dennis brought into the cabinet to hold the office of Minister of Labor which used to be held by Hon. W. A. McKenzie in addition to that of Minister of Mines and two members leaving there are still eight members on salary.

In his announcement in September, Premier Tolmie said: "There will be a thorough reorganization of the cabinet and in that reorganization representatives of other groups will be afforded an opportunity to participate."

WOODSHUNTED FOR BANDITS

Police Believe Escaped Kansas Convicts in Forest in Arkansas

Associated Press
Siloam Springs, Ark., June 1.—Officers to-day were closing on a densely wooded section near here in the belief some of the Kansas state prison convicts had taken refuge in the hills after an exchange of shots with Chief of Police Bob La Follette here yesterday evening.

TRAILS ACROSS STATES
McAlester, Okla., June 1.—Fugitives from two United States prisons left reckless trails across four southwestern states to-day.

Violence flared at scattered points along the routes of flight chosen by the eleven desperadoes who fled in two groups from the Kansas state penitentiary at Lansing Tuesday. Bloodhounds sniffed at the heels of two convicted killers who emulated the northern convicts and dashed away from the Oklahoma penitentiary here late yesterday, holding for a time a guard hostage.

The Kansas convicts kidnaped Kirk Prather, whose term was warden ended last midnight, two guards and three women.

The warden and the guards were freed near Welch, Okla., and the women near Pleasanton, Kans.

FRENCH DEFAULT IS PREDICTED

Paris, June 1.—Another French default on the $10,722,000 war debt instalment due the United States June 15 was accepted as inevitable in government quarters to-day as the Chamber of Deputies started the Pentecost holidays.

Reward Posted For Sue Killer

H. M. McGivern Offers $500 For Clearing of Sue Min Jim Mystery

Investigators of Chinese Death Prepare Evidence For Inquest on Monday

A reward of $500 for apprehension and conviction of the person or persons who killed Sue Min Jim, houseboy at the home of H. M. McGivern in the Uplands on the night of May 23, was offered to-day by Mr. McGivern.

Chief John Syme published the notice of the reward on the authority of Mr. McGivern.

The police, meanwhile, said there were no further developments in the case. Inspector J. F. C. E. Vance, Vancouver city analyst and criminologist, returned to the mainland yesterday after two days' intensive work at the scene of Sue's death. Other investigators were putting into shape what evidence they have gathered for presentation to the coroner's jury next Monday morning when the inquest resumes.

Inspector Vance, it is expected, will be one of the chief witnesses at the inquest to give his reconstruction of what happened when Sue Min Jim entered the basement door of the McGivern home after his trip to the city on the night before the May 24 celebration.

SIX CONVICTS TO BE SENTENCED

Montreal, June 1.—The six convicts charged with seditious damage in connection with the riot and fire at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary near here last November, today were found guilty by a jury in the court of king's bench before Mr. Justice Charles A. Wilson.

In his announcement in September, Premier Tolmie said: "There will be a thorough reorganization of the cabinet and in that reorganization representatives of other groups will be afforded an opportunity to participate."

Violence flared at scattered points along the routes of flight chosen by the eleven desperadoes who fled in two groups from the Kansas state penitentiary at Lansing Tuesday. Bloodhounds sniffed at the heels of two convicted killers who emulated the northern convicts and dashed away from the Oklahoma penitentiary here late yesterday, holding for a time a guard hostage.

Associated Press
Washington, June 1.—Speaker Rainey told newspapermen to-day that the proposed tariff bill, as last drafted, would give the President power to negotiate and put in operation, without first receiving United States Senate approval, reciprocal treaties with Canada and other nations.

"Under that bill," the House Speaker said, "the President would have authority to make reciprocal tariff treaties. They would become effective on his proclamation and remain in effect unless the Senate rejected them."

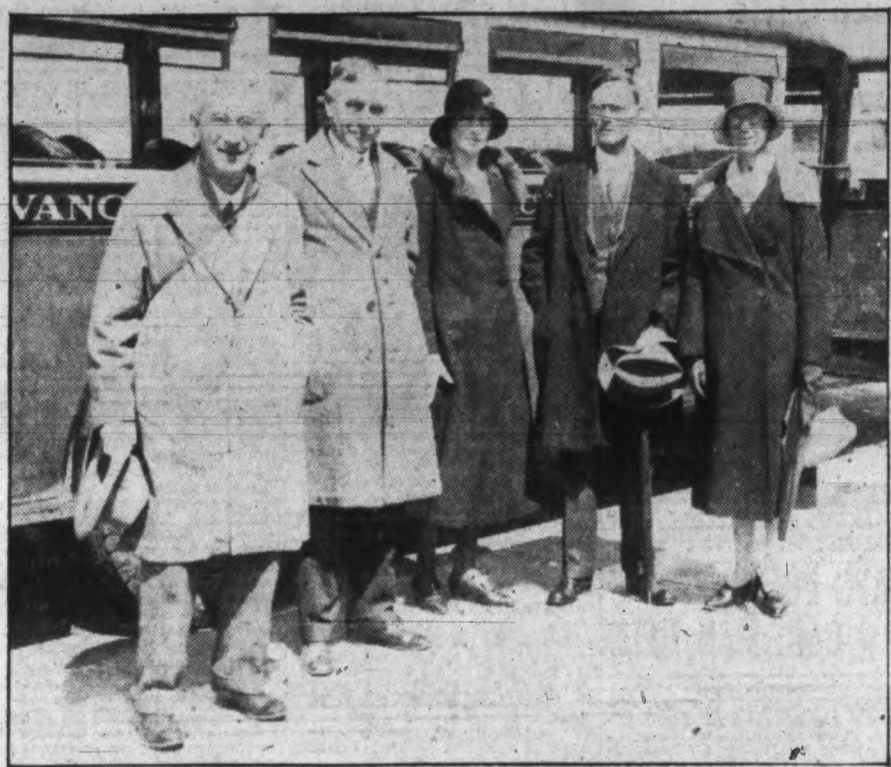

"It's the same plan followed in the reorganization authority we gave to the chief executive," he referred to shifting about of government bureaus. The tentative measure, now being redrafted for the fourth time, would limit to a specified period the time in which the Senate could reject the treaties, Rainey added. In the draft of the bill, he said, that period was blank.

"The principal question now involved is whether there is a necessity for the President to have power to raise as well as lower tariffs," Speaker Rainey said. "The contention by some is that he can raise them sufficiently under the present flexible provisions of the tariff law."

Large Crowd At Morgan Inquiry In Washington

CIRCUS EVENT AT INQUIRY

Show Woman Midget Surprises Morgan By Sitting on His Lap

Associated Press
Washington, June 1.—J. P. Morgan had the surprise of his life to-day.

All of a sudden a little touch of femininity, a circus midget sat on his lap.

Piloted by an enterprising press agent, Miss Lya Graf—who has been thirty-one years but grown hardly a mite—gave a real circus touch to the United States Senate Morgan investigation scene.

It will be remembered Senator Carter Glass, complaining against past procedure, said it was like a circus, adding, "all we need is peanuts and pink lemonade."

The refreshments were missing to-day when tiny Lya headed through the crowd for the Morgan group while it waited for the hearing to begin, shook hands with several and then walked to the dignified head of the firm.

Laughing, he rose, took her hand and sat down again.

Then unexpectedly the press agent placed the midget on the banker's lap. He looked non-plussed, but submitted gracefully at the start. Soon his face became stern as pictures were taken.

NO PICTURES IN PAPERS
Notified quickly of the incident, the Senate banking committee warned photographers that if the photographs were used, those taking them would be barred from future hearings.

Before Miss Graf was placed on his lap, Morgan chatted amiably with her. "Where do you live?" he inquired.

"In a tent, sir," she replied. "Morgan told the midget he 'had a grandson bigger than you are.'"

He asked her age and she said "fifty."

He commented that she didn't look it.

ATTACK MADE ON INQUIRY COUNSEL

Washington, June 1.—John C. Hackett, describing himself as former special deputy police commissioner of New York, called on United States Senate banking committee members to-day to file charges against Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel in the investigation of J. P. Morgan and Company.

Associated Press
Washington, June 1.—Evidence was presented to the United States senate investigators to-day that J. P. Morgan and Company's utility stockholding concern—the United Corporation—used an accounting system under which some of its gains could be distributed as "a return of capital" and not as "a taxable dividend."

Ferdinand Pecora, senate committee counsel, introduced a memorandum explaining the accounting system used by the United Corporation on its operating warrants.

Money received from exercise of the warrants was credited to "paid in surplus."

George Whitney, Morgan's partner, was on the stand at the time.

"FAVORED CUSTOMERS"
A new list of selected clients of Morgan and Company was placed before the investigators and it included the names of Owen J. Roberts, now an associate judge of the United States Supreme Court, and W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The transaction involved took place before Roberts was appointed to the court in June, 1930.

At a closed session this forenoon, before the open sitting, the committee decided on an eleven to three vote, to make public the Morgan partnership agreement, save for names "of the present partners and the percentages of their interests."

Japan Army Leaders Plan New Campaign

Freed By Armistice in North China, Troops May Be Sent to Win Kalgan Area of Inner Mongolia

By James A. Mills, Associated Press Staff Correspondent
Tientsin, China, June 1.—Japanese military leaders, their sanguinary five-month offensive in North China having ended with a truce, to-day considered employing their effective war machine in two new tasks.

The Japanese released the greater part of the Japanese army for service against Chinese bandits in Manchuria and for the proposed campaign for the eventual acquisition of the Kalgan area in Kalgan province, Inner Mongolia.

The cessation of hostilities came after nearly two years of intermittent warfare in Manchuria, the Chinese province of Jehol, and in north China, during which it is estimated, China lost more than 50,000 men and the Japanese 10,000.

The truce provides Chinese police shall maintain order in the evacuated Manchuria.

STUBBS WILL PRACTICE LAW

Removed From County Court Bench, He Will Be Barrister in Winnipeg

Declines to Discuss He Will Be Candidate in Next Federal Election

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, June 1.—A law practice, interrupted when he was appointed to the bench in 1922, will be resumed in Winnipeg by Lewis St. George Stubbs, former Manitoba senior county court judge, whose retirement by Order-in-Council of the Dominion government was announced in Ottawa yesterday afternoon.

Removed from the bench following the Royal Commission investigation carried out by Mr. Justice Frank Ford of Edmonton into charges of judicial misconduct, Mr. Stubbs is free to resume his practice started in the little town of Birtle, Man., in 1908. He is still on the rolls of the Manitoba Law Society.

In his practice Mr. Stubbs will be associated with his daughter, Constance, who last week graduated with honors in law. Two of his sons, Roy and Harold, are studying law.

CHARGE FOLLOWS WOMAN'S DEATH

Widower Accused By Sheriff's Officer at Santa Jose, Cal.

Associated Press
San Jose, Cal., June 1.—Undersheriff Earle Hamilton, directing the investigation of the violent death of Mrs. Allene Thorpe Lamson, Stanford Campus Y.W.C.A. secretary, to-day said he would ask the district attorney to file a murder charge against the widower, David A. Lamson.

"We have ample evidence to warrant such a charge," the officer said.

Hamilton disclosed he had been searching for two days for the missing Lamson maid in the hope she could throw light on the young couple's home life.

Hamilton expressed belief she had been spirited away.

He said a doctor retained by officers reported finding positive evidence Mrs. Lamson had been struck four times on the back of the head. This conflicts with contentions of Lamson's attorney, Arthur N. Free, that the young woman was killed by an accidental fall in the bathtub.

Lamson, in jail, denied he had slain his wife.

Delegates From Thirty Nations Represented At Congress Opening To-day

PREMIER GIVES B.C.'S GREETING

Researches of Intense Interest to Province, Tolmie Tells Scientists

Science Pays, He Says, and Its Advance Is as Inevitable as Civilization's Progress

The whole of British Columbia will watch the progress of the fifth Pacific Science Congress here with intense interest, declared Premier Tolmie in his welcoming address to the delegates at a luncheon tendered by the provincial government at noon to-day. Because of the great strides made by world trade and commerce through the medium of scientific research, everyone is to-day looking more towards science as a means of development, he stated.

"We recognize the outstanding importance of this event which brings together the leaders of scientific thought from every country on the Pacific ocean," said the Premier. "We are deeply sensible of the compliment to British Columbia and to Canada, and assure you that your proceedings will be followed with eager interest."

"Here in British Columbia we have one of the finest climates in the world, with magnificent harbors open the year around. Between the Coast and the Rocky Mountains we have uncalculated resources of timber, gold, silver, copper and lead, of coal and water power and fruitful soil, while beyond the mountains lies one of the world's greatest food-producing hinterlands."

CANADIAN CLUB DINNER TO-NIGHT

"Science and the Empire," will be the subject of an address to be given by Dr. J. Gray, F.R.S., King's College, Cambridge, at a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel at 6:30 o'clock to-day.

Following the dinner, members of the Women's Canadian Club and ladies attending the congress, are invited to hear the speaker.

The Canadian dollar yielded an early gain of 1/2 cent to wind up unchanged at 88 1/2 cents.

The pound sterling closed 1/2 cent higher at $9.99 1/2, but 1/2 cent below its top for the day.

Exchange rates at noon to-day (yesterday's prices in brackets) as reported by the Canadian Press were:

Pound sterling in Montreal, $9.50 1/2 ($9.45 1/2).
U.S. dollar in Montreal, 1.12 1/2 (1.12 1/2).

Ten Per Cent Strawberry Crop Loss in North Saanich and Keating

Dahlia, Tomatoes and Potatoes Suffer in Victoria

Severe damage to tomatoes, dahlias and potatoes in private gardens in various parts of the city, and ten per cent damage to the strawberry crops of North Saanich and Keating districts has been reported as a result of the heavy ground frost of the last two nights. F. Napier Denison, superintendent of the Dominion Meteorological Observatory at Gonzales, stated that the ground temperature dropped to 30.7 last night after a slight frost the previous night.

"Some damage has been done to the strawberry crop, probably about ten per cent of it being killed," said Captain E. Livesey, president of the North Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

Captain Livesey stated that the Keating area had also suffered as a result of the drop in temperature but that of the whole about fifty per cent of the crops had developed to the stage where they were immune from frost of this degree.

From Hillside, Victoria, West, the Gorge and Oak Bay reports are to the effect that dahlias have been blackened, young potato plants ruined and tomato plants practically a total loss.

Markmen returning from Healy yesterday afternoon told of a severe hailstorm continuing for nearly half an hour, and which is believed to have done considerable damage to strawberry crops in that area.

BECOMES PREMIER OF NEW BRUNSWICK

HON. L. P. D. TILLEY, K.C.

Canadian Press
Fredericton, N.B., June 1.—George H. I. Cuckburn, M.P.P. for Charlotte County, will be a minister without portfolio and President of the Executive Council in the cabinet of Premier-Designate L. P. D. Tilley, according to an announcement. Hon. W. H. Harrison, K.C., who has been minister without portfolio and President of the Council, will be Attorney-General.

No other changes are being made in the cabinet.

Mr. Tilley succeeds as Premier, Hon. C. D. Richards, whose resignation was given so he might become a judge of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick.

The new Premier, who is a son of Sir Samuel Leonard Tilley, one of the Fathers of Confederation, was a member of the Richards-Cabinet, a Conservative administration, as Minister of Lands and Mines. He is sixty-three years of age.

EXCHANGE DOLLAR HOLDS ITS GROUND

Canadian Press
New York, June 1.—British currencies were just about steady at the close of the New York foreign exchange market to-day.

The Canadian dollar yielded an early gain of 1/2 cent to wind up unchanged at 88 1/2 cents.

The pound sterling closed 1/2 cent higher at $9.99 1/2, but 1/2 cent below its top for the day.

SCIENCE PERSONALITIES

PROF. JAMES GRAY
Prof. James Gray, Sc.D., M.A., M.C., F.R.S., of the British delegates to the Pacific Science Congress, has been a fellow of King's College, Cambridge, since 1914. He is a reader in experimental zoology at Cambridge University.

He has prepared numerous valuable scientific papers, the chief of which dealt with the Ciliary Movement and Experimental Cytology. He served as a captain during the World War with the Queen's Royal West Surrey regiment. This evening Dr. Gray will be the guest-speaker at the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel.

He is accompanied on his trip to Victoria by Mrs. Gray.

DR. GEOFFREY J. TAYLOR
Here to-day for the scientific conference is Major Geoffrey J. Taylor, F.R.S., of Trinity College, Cambridge, England, who is a Yarrow research professor of the Royal Society. He was elected to the fellowship at Trinity College in 1910 and has written various papers on mathematics, meteorology, aerodynamics and engineering. Dr. Taylor was meteorologist to the Scotia expedition to the North Atlantic in 1913, and was engaged in experimental aerodynamics and meteorology during the war. He holds a plane pilot's certificate. Dr. Taylor is accompanied by Mrs. Taylor.

Pacific Will Become Centre of World's Activities, Says Official Spokesman of Honolulu

Scientists As Factors In World's Progress

Speakers of France, England, Japan and Netherlands at Morning Meeting

With 160 of the leading men of science from thirty nations bordering on the Pacific in attendance, and more coming in this afternoon, the Fifth Pacific Science Congress opened its sessions at the Empress Hotel this morning.

Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Fordham Johnson officially welcomed the convention to British Columbia. To this welcome Dr. H. M. Tory of Ottawa, president of the Congress, replied with his presidential address in which he emphasized as the greatest contribution of the Congress the fact that the problems—economic, scientific and social—of the Pacific area are being viewed as a whole by groups of men who hitherto have viewed them only partially and with a local outlook.

Dr. Tory declared that growing co-operation among scientists of the Pacific countries was merely an illustration of the growth of international effort in science generally.

FIVE NATIONS
Official spokesmen of five nations were called upon to present their greetings. Dr. H. E. Gregory, director of the Bernice Bishop Museum, Honolulu, spoke of the immensity of the Pacific problem, too great for any one country or institution to handle.

"The way in which it has been found possible to submerge national and institutional interests in this programme is to me very remarkable," said Dr. Gregory. "In this Congress there is no effort to build up national prestige. Problems of the Pacific must be solved before we can build up the highest civilization around its shores. The Pacific will become the centre of the world's activities. We are going to become Pacific-minded, instead of Atlantic-minded."

"What determines the welfare of a people in any area? It is a knowledge of the earth's natural resources and the natural laws that make life possible. Governments are all right, but I certainly think they have made a mess of the world's activities. We see beyond the accumulation of scientific facts, the relationship that will make the Pacific the great future home for mankind."

Professor Paul Chavrier of the Academy of Science, Paris, France, paid tribute to the progress of Canada and the example it provided the world of the French and English civilizations existing harmoniously together.

Professor G. L. Taylor of the Royal Society of London, speaking for Britain, pointed out the significance of the fact that in these years while progress in other lines has been curtailed, and the more violent forms of nationalism are destroying advancement, science continues its progress. He recalled that some of the greatest discoveries in chemistry were made by Frenchmen during the political unsettlement of the first world war.

Dr. S. Hattai, representing the Imperial Japanese University of Tokyo, emphasized the importance of international understanding.

Professor Van Everdingen, representative of the Netherlands government, was greeted with applause when he asserted: "Scientific men fight, but when they fight no blood flows."

H.C.'S WELCOME
Lieutenant-Governor Fordham Johnson, arriving to open the Congress was accompanied to the platform by his aide, Major Selden Humphries, and his secretary, A. M. D. Fairbairn.

"To-day marks the opening of a congress which is the first of its kind ever to be held on this side of the Pacific Ocean," said the Lieutenant-Governor.

"To this congress have come distinguished scientists from most of the principal countries of the Pacific Basin, scientists whose objects it is to compare and discuss plans for international co-operation in scientific research on problems directly affecting the Pacific people and indirectly the welfare of the world as a whole."

"At such a congress as this is made possible the interchange of ideas and points of view; of discoveries and far-reaching solutions of problems of great magnitude; problems which deal not alone with the economic and commercial future of a large number of great countries, but also the peace and happiness of their peoples."

"That the results of such a congress must be of tremendous and far-reaching benefit cannot be doubted by any thinking person and Canada has been one of the first countries to recognize the value to the world of the organization known as the Pacific Science Congress."

PREMIER GIVES B.C.'S GREETING

Banks May Reduce It To Five Percent

STUBBS WILL PRACTICE LAW

"It has been freely predicted—and the whole history of human migration lends color to the belief—that the west will become the centre of population and industry. As a matter of fact, Vancouver is already recognized as the world's chief grain port, although still a very young city. The Panama Canal has brought an enormous increase in sea-borne traffic by removing the great disability which prevented the Pacific coast from becoming an international highway. To-day, two-thirds of Canada's import trade, and quite one-half of her export trade is with countries bordering the Pacific.

IMMENSE STAKE

"In these circumstances, I need not labor the fact that Canada and British Columbia have an immense stake in everything affecting conditions in the Pacific area.

"We are a great autonomous nation, engaged in working out our own salvation, in fostering our own interests as long as they do not conflict with those of the Commonwealth as a whole, and Canada's place in Pacific affairs is tremendously important in the great era of Pacific development which is now fairly under way.

"Science has replaced chance in the great scheme of human affairs. Manufacturing and commerce, like warfare and medicine, have become scientific. They move steadily ahead, and carry with them, but none of us know where.

"Among the principal subjects which you will have for discussion and which of course interest the people of British Columbia, in mining, too, what you have to offer on the copper and zinc resources of the Pacific countries will be of great interest to us. Your discussions on forestry, trade in town products between the Pacific countries, development in pulp and paper industries are all of great value to us and are live subjects in our country.

"The world has learned that science is practical, that science pays. And so professorships have multiplied, research is being encouraged, scientific journals are established and supported, and such great meetings as this fifth Pacific Science Congress are made possible. Its advance is as inevitable as the advance of civilization.

"We are highly honored in having such a distinguished body of men with us on this occasion. I sincerely hope that you will find things comfortable here and that you will have a profitable gathering. I desire to say that as far as the Government buildings are concerned there is anything we can do for you we will be only too delighted to assist in any way. We have a very interesting museum and we are also rather proud of our archives, and I am sure some of you could spend a few pleasant hours looking over our buildings.

"The two objects of the Pacific Science Association are set forth. I do not think there can exist an organization of more distinguished men whose objects touch higher ideals.

"I shall take the liberty of quoting these two objects as they are printed in the constitution of the association: "To initiate and promote co-operation in the study of scientific problems relating to the Pacific region, more particularly those affecting the prosperity and well-being of Pacific peoples.

"To strengthen the bonds of peace among Pacific Coast peoples by promoting a feeling of brotherhood amongst the scientists of all the Pacific countries.

"With these two fervent and sincere wishes that these ideals may be realized in the deliberations which commence to-day I have very great pleasure in declaring the Fifth Pacific Science Congress open.

All the opening addresses were broadcast over a continent-wide radio hook-up.

GUESTS OF PREMIER

At 1 o'clock this afternoon all the delegates to the congress were guests of the Premier and the members of the B.C. Government at a luncheon at the Empress Hotel. At this luncheon the Premier was the principal speaker.

The delegates were photographed in the morning, under arrangements made by Mr. Cook, the director, and were taken in a fleet of sightseeing cars to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, where they were the guests of Dr. J. S. Flackett, director, and staff. After that the party went on out to Butchart's Gardens.

The sessions of the congress here will continue until Saturday night, when the grand banquet will be held. On Sunday the congress will leave by special boat for Vancouver, traveling through the Gulf Islands and calling at Nanaimo. Sessions will continue on the mainland for ten days.

This evening the first meeting of the Pacific Science Congress will open at 8.30 o'clock. To-morrow there will be general business meetings, with a luncheon tendered by the city of Victoria. The evening will be spent at the Provincial Archives at the Parliament Buildings. Saturday afternoon will see the grand garden party at Government House given by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Representatives of Municipalities Told By Bennett at Ottawa Cheque Stamp Tax Must Be Paid

Canadian Press
Ottawa, June 1.—Immunity from the cheque stamp tax could not be granted municipalities, Prime Minister Bennett told a delegation representing the Union of Canadian Municipalities here to-day.

The delegation, headed by S. Baker of London, Ont., secretary of the union, also asked the Prime Minister if anything could be done to secure lower interest rates from the banks for the municipalities.

While Mr. Bennett said he could give no assurance of government intervention, he informed the delegation it was the understanding the banks would give municipalities a rate of 5%, or possibly 3 per cent.

After visiting the Department of Labor, Mr. Baker said there had been a satisfactory discussion of relief matters and that Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, had agreed that if the provinces approved of municipalities paying direct relief in cash, the federal government would raise no objection.

All the provinces except Alberta, Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island were personally represented in the party, and those three had endorsed the representations made to the government, Mr. Baker said.

REPORT AND ORDER

Ottawa, June 1.—Lewis St. George Stubbs, to-day stood deposed from his seat on the county court bench of southeastern Manitoba by an order-in-council of the Dominion Government. The order-in-council, passed yesterday, followed lengthy consideration of the report of Mr. Justice Frank Ford of Edmonton, who as a federal commissioner investigated the charges of judicial misconduct laid against the fifty-five-year-old jurist by Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General of Manitoba.

A 5,000-word report based on twenty-four days of hearings, Mr. Justice Ford found Judge Stubbs guilty of four charges of misbehavior, one of which was the largest and most serious. The charges followed clashes between Judge Stubbs and the department over a period of eight years over subjects as divergent as the will of the late Alexander Macdonald, millionaire Winnipeg merchant, and enforcement of the liquor law in Manitoba.

"There is no doubt the conduct of Judge Stubbs in respect to the matter with which I have dealt has done great harm to judicial institutions in Manitoba," wrote the commissioner in his report, which was under consideration for weeks by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State.

"To hold a superior court up to public contempt and ridicule is misbehavior, especially where, as in the recent instance, the criticism was unjust, unfounded, intemperate and scandalous," the commissioner declared. "I think it is deplorable and indeed reprehensible that the War Judge has shown such a defiant, impatient and intemperate attitude throughout, which, indeed, showed itself in the retaliatory rather than the defensive character of his conduct in the inquiry."

QUESTION OF FEES

The commissioner found complaints of the judge accepting legal fees and his acceptance of $1,000 for serving as a commissioner for the Soldiers' Settlement Board did not constitute judicial misconduct within the meaning of the act.

Utterances of the accused both in pamphlet and statements to the press were described by Mr. Justice Ford as "incursion into the political field which should not be tolerated in a judge. . . . and no grievances, real or imaginary, would justify such accusations as 'my accusers are men who ought themselves to be under criminal indictment,' even if he believed in their truth."

The commissioner did not feel justified in making a finding on the charge Judge Stubbs had shown a disregard of evidence and used bias in hearing criminal cases.

"Indeed, my consideration of the records in a number of cases in which he is said to have shown disregard of evidence and bias would lead me, if I felt I had the right to review his judgments in the present circumstances, to agree with results he arrived at," commented Mr. Justice Ford on his findings.

Mr. Stubbs picked his fifty-fifth birthday, June 14, as the date for opening his law office here. He will resume practice exactly thirty years from the date of his being sworn in as a judge, commented Mr. Justice Ford on his findings.

He refused to discuss or to deny a rumor that he would re-enter federal politics. The report which sprang up as soon as it was learned he had been removed from the bench, said he might be a candidate for the Commons in the by-election in Assiniboia, a Saskatchewan constituency.

SON-WRITING BOOK
"Judge Stubbs, Judicial Heretic and Humanist," is the title of a life of his father now being written by the fiery little lawyer's oldest son, Roy, a law student at the University of Manitoba. The book will contain a history of the Ford Commission and the Macdonald case, which figured so prominently in the charges against Judge Stubbs. Roy Stubbs said he expected the book to be published in Eastern Canada in the late fall.

The judge also was found not guilty of "unwarranted" criticism against the Manitoba Legislature, and had branded him "a thief and a grafter." The judge, who all through the hearing charged the complaints against him had been made through "personal animosity" of the Attorney-General, "deliberately made use of his judicial position to vent his personal animosity to Mr. Major," said the commissioner.

Mr. Justice Ford said he was not prepared to rule whether "scandalizing the superior courts of the province in the flagrant manner" of which Judge Stubbs had been guilty in the Macdonald will dispute, "amounts to contempt of court."

"Repetition and the extent of publication of defamatory matter, and repetition of conduct, which might be passed over if not repeated, is a factor which should be taken into account," said the commissioner in further referring to the Macdonald case, which constituted one of the charges against the judge, who resigned from the surrogate court when the provincial government reduced his salary.

Mr. Stubbs was born on Turks Island, British West Indies, in 1878. He studied at Christ's College, Cambridge. He was first to enlist from the college cadet corps for the Boer War. In 1902 he moved to Canada's west. He studied law in Winnipeg, and in 1922 was appointed to a county court judgeship in Winnipeg. He applied for a pension last year, but was refused.

Mr. Stubbs was a Liberal candidate in Marquette, Man., in the federal election of 1921, but was defeated.

RELIEF COSTS CONTRASTED

Calgary, June 1 (Canadian Press).—The Calgary board of trade has requested Dominion Minister of Labor, Hon. W. A. Gordon, to make a complete investigation into the differences between relief costs in Calgary and Edmonton. The board claims that in March Calgary had 11,120 people on relief, costing $128,920, while Edmonton, with 12,055, reported a cost of $95,884.

PREMIER TOLMIE AND HINCHLIFFE TAKE DUAL JOBS

WHO NEXT?
As only one outside man has been brought in and the cabinet has yet to be reduced by one more salary member to make the Premier's announcement complete, it is anticipated there will be several more changes.

After the swearing in ceremony this morning, Premier Tolmie made the following announcement: "In assuming the portfolio of Agriculture I am conscious of the importance of an industry which provides a direct livelihood for approximately one-half of the population of this province."

"The Federal Bureau of Statistics, as a result of the 1921 census, shows a total population for British Columbia of 694,000 people, of which 299,524 are designated as residents of agricultural communities."

INFLUENCE ON PROSPERITY

"The welfare of this half of the citizens of the province has a very important, though indirect, influence on the prosperity of the other half. In this connection I wish to point out that the purchasing power of such rural element, derived from the creation of new wealth by agricultural development, is increased without depleting natural resources."

"The history of the Provincial Department of Agriculture dates back to 1894, at which time mining, lumbering, fishing and fur-trading were the major industries of British Columbia. While these pursuits are recognized still as leading industries, agriculture, in production of value, has steadily advanced until it has reached first place among the primary industries of the province."

For nearly forty years the Department of Agriculture has been a prime factor in stimulating agricultural production and in providing protective services against plant and animal diseases and pests. It has also performed an important service to British Columbia at large by leadership in organizing adults in rural communities for individual and co-operative effort and in training young people for life on farms.

"It will be my endeavor to maintain the high standard of my predecessors in office who were successful in bringing the department to its present state of efficiency and I hope to continue and extend the services rendered by the department."

WOODS HUNTED FOR BANDITS

Disarming Tom Baskin, guard, who was escorting them from repair work at the prison women's ward, the two Oklahoma fugitives, Jim Strubling, an Indian, and H. D. Bradbury, sped away in Baskin's motor car after throwing the guard out, and later abandoning it on a rocky mountain road near Hayward, twelve miles west of the prison.

A gunfight at Sioux Spring, Ark., between Chief of Police Bob La Follette and three auto thieves who abandoned a Kansas car and the robbery of a motoring couple by two prisoners near Seneca, Mo., bore out officers' opinions the Kansas convicts were gaining the Ozark mountains and hills in the area, where Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri converge.

Officers also suspected the Kansas convicts of killing Night Policeman Otto Durke, who tried to prevent a tire shop robbery at Chiopa, Kansas, early yesterday, and during the day there were reports that Wilbur Underhill, the "tri-state terror," who led the Kansas break, was leading fleeing bands near Miami and in Oage County, Okla., to the west. Benton, however, was fruitless.

RELIEF PLANS TO BE STATED

Ottawa, June 1.—The reply of the Dominion Government to the representations of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta for extension of the provisions of the unemployment relief agreement will be given to-day.

The agreement expired March 31. Discussion continued between Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, Hon. M. A. Macpherson, Provincial Treasurer and Attorney-General of Saskatchewan, Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General of Manitoba, and Hon. W. R. Clubb, Minister of Public Works of Manitoba, on the subject this morning.

A further conference was scheduled for this afternoon.

MAJOR'S POSITION

The court absolved Hon. W. J. Major from the charge by Judge Stubbs that he had had about him on the floor of the Manitoba Legislature, and had branded him "a thief and a grafter."

The judge, who all through the hearing charged the complaints against him had been made through "personal animosity" of the Attorney-General, "deliberately made use of his judicial position to vent his personal animosity to Mr. Major," said the commissioner.

Mr. Justice Ford said he was not prepared to rule whether "scandalizing the superior courts of the province in the flagrant manner" of which Judge Stubbs had been guilty in the Macdonald will dispute, "amounts to contempt of court."

Large Crowd At Morgan Inquiry In Washington

John W. Davis, as counsel for Morgan, had been allowed to renew his protest to the committee against the publication on the ground the information was strictly private.

PROFIT POSSIBILITIES

At its public sitting the committee voted a potential profit of $122,500,000 for J. P. Morgan and Company in 1929 if it had sold securities received by it in forming the United Corporation.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, given free rein by the committee, introduced the potential profit figure in connection with the United Corporation deal, George Whitney, a Morgan partner, said it was correct.

He directed ridicule at the figure as a "surmise of what might have been done, but wasn't."

Whitney had testified yesterday that if the firm had sold the securities it turned over to the United Corporation in forming that concern, it would have made a profit of $67,000,000.

PARTNERSHIP DISCUSSION

Telling newspapermen of the committee's discussion of the Morgan partnership, he said the committee had voted to go on in favor of publishing the original partnership agreement made in 1916 without subsequent collateral agreements.

The three, Chairman Fletcher said, Senators Coughlin, Michigan, Republican; Norbeck, South Dakota Republican; and Cogan, Colorado Democrat, voted to publish everything.

Fletcher said that under the committee's decision, the original 1916 agreement would be placed in the record with the names embodied in it. Subsequent agreements when parties were added or dropped would not be made public.

"The committee thought they were not of any public interest," he said, and that the public interest was confined to the basic agreement itself.

Asked if the agreement was really a partnership, Fletcher said: "The articles say it is a partnership. I don't know what will be later."

ING CROWD THERE
While the committee was in private session this forenoon another huge crowd had gathered in the hope of new sensations. Seats were at such a premium in the broad hearing hall that students at the University of Manitoba to the room to get them in.

First of the Morgan group to arrive again was George Howard, president of the United Corporation. He chatted with the employees guarding the documents and records.

With cooler weather than on the previous days, the large two-story windows of the big hearing room were kept closed for the first time.

For the first time there appeared to be more men than women among the listeners.

Mr. Morgan chatted with members of the staff of Mr. Pecora.

The private sitting lasted more than an hour.

The "preferred" list brought to light to-day, the fourth presented, was of persons sold $2,000 units of stock in the United Corporation—Morgan utilities stock holding company—in January, 1929, at $75 each, although the price almost at once on the public market was $99.

Brig-Gen. Aterbury was listed to-day for 2,500 units and Rumpers for 100.

The total units sold to those on the list was in an amount making total possible paper profits of nearly $2,000,000. With J. P. Morgan closely following the testimony, the new list was placed in the record suddenly by Ferdinand Pecora, just after a Morgan witness had given the crowd a thrill by testifying partners in the firm had paid total income taxes for 1917 to 1929 inclusive of $51,538,000.

That figure was given by Leonard Keyes, office manager of the firm, at the suggestion of John W. Davis, Morgan counsel. In answer to Senator Coughlin, Keyes said the twenty partners of the house of Morgan had paid, both state and federal taxes, in come taxes amounting to $5,108,701 for 1927, $6,172,893 for 1928 and $10,990,877 for 1929.
It had been previously testified that had paid none for 1931 and 1932.
PUBLICITY FIELD
Washington, June 1.—J. P. Morgan and his partners did not seek publicity but now it has been thrust on them they are keen to get their side of the story to the public.
When headlines proclaimed that although J. P. Morgan had paid no income tax in the United States in 1931 and 1932, he had paid in Great Britain the head of the banking house asked the committee to let him explain he had paid only what he had to, "no more, no less."
The reaction to the now famous list of select Morgan customers caused George Whitney yesterday to assert that the list was really underwriting transactions by which his company "shared its risk" with others in stock issues. He said he had not given this explanation last week because he had not realized then the impression the lists would create.
At the end of yesterday's session Whitney spent forty-five minutes explaining details to newspapermen, but would not let them quote him directly. Privately, various members of the firm say they have been astonished at the reaction to the testimony, and at the newspaper space given it.

WOMAN KILLS THREE CHILDREN

Prominent New Hampshire Lumber Dealer's Wife Then Ends Own Life

Springfield, N.H., June 1.—Mrs. C. Gardner, wife of a prominent lumber dealer here, slashed the throats of her three children as they slept in the family home late yesterday evening and then committed suicide. The bodies of the children were discovered by the husband, who found Mrs. Gardner dying.

The children were Edith, eleven; Charles, six; and Walter, three. The mother died while being taken to a hospital at Newport.

Since the birth of their last child, Gardner had suffered from nervous trouble and had frequently been despondent, the widow told of.

Shortly before midnight, Gardner said, he was awakened to find his wife on the floor near the infant's crib, with her throat had been slashed with a razor. Rushing upstairs, he discovered the older children dead in their beds.

NAZI CHRISTIANS OPPOSE SELECTION

Hitler Tells Them to Use Propaganda in Fighting New Evangelical Bishop

Associated Press

Berlin, June 1.—Chancellor Hitler yesterday authorized his Nazi church spokesman, Rev. Hermann Mueller, to use the whole propaganda machine of the party at the disposal of the German Christians in opposing the appointment of Dr. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh as Evangelical Bishop of the Reich.

Dr. Bodelschwingh took office this week after selection by the chiefs of twenty-nine German Protestant organizations and over the strenuous opposition of the German Christians, a Nazi group, who urged Dr. Mueller for the post.

The German Christians will insist in the holding of a church plebiscite to determine finally the selection of the first Reich bishop, and in their campaign will be assisted by all the government-controlled channels of propaganda.

The endeavor of Nazism to dominate the phase of German life, including the churches, finds expression in orders which have been issued—according to the Tagliche Rundschau, Protestant organ—by various Nazi district leaders, making it mandatory on party members to oppose Dr. Bodelschwingh.

Nazis Celebrate Jutland "Victory"

Canadian Press

London, June 1.—Sir Charles Cazalet, apparently taking cognizance of Nazi celebrations of an alleged German victory at the Battle of Jutland, yesterday asked First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, in the Commons, if any special steps would be taken in the United Kingdom to celebrate the anniversary of the battle.

Sir Charles suggested some special privileges might be accorded all ranks of the naval service to mark the nation's appreciation of the navy's part in that victory. Sir Bolton, however, frowned on the proposal, reminding the House it was not the British custom to celebrate naval victories in that manner.

EMPIRE BACON TO BE MARKED

New Ruling of British Committee Applies to Canadian Exports

By George Hambleton

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 1.—A standing committee established by the Minister of Agriculture recommended yesterday a marking order be applied to all imported bacon and ham. This means, in the committee's recommendation is adopted, that all foreign ham and bacon will bear the mark "foreign" and all such products from the Empire will bear the mark "Empire," with the name of the country of origin in addition.

Canadian ham and bacon thus would be marked Canada and Empire "in block lettering not less than three-quarters of an inch high."

"We are satisfied," the committee reported, "that in absence of adequate marking there are obvious opportunities for substitution of imported bacon and ham for home-produced bacon and ham and of foreign bacon and ham for Empire bacon and ham, and that this fact in itself constitutes a strong reason why the public should be given protection and assistance which a marking order alone could give, and the honest retailer given protection against revival."

PUBLICITY GETS RESULTS

Associated Press

"It was suggested that, as result of propaganda during the last year or two, there is now quite definitely an increasing demand on the part of the public to purchase home or Empire produce as against foreign produce, and that, in order to meet this desire in regard to bacon and ham, a marking order is necessary."

More than 90 per cent of British imports of bacon and approximately 80 per cent of ham imports were of foreign origin in 1932. Of the former, Denmark supplied 67 per cent and of the latter the United States supplied 58 per cent. Empire supplies were almost negligible in the case of bacon and such supplies as reached the British market came mainly from Canada and the Irish Free State, whose proportions were 1.6 and 1.8 per cent, respectively. In the case of ham, Canada supplied 17.8 and the Irish Free State 1.9 per cent.

DEBT PAYMENT DEBATE BARRED

Associated Press

London, June 1.—The Commons failed again to-day to pry from Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, a statement of the British policy in regard to the $75,950,000 war debt installment due the United States June 15.

Frederick S. Coombs, a Labor member, asked whether the government had reached any decision regarding payment of the installment, and Mr. Chamberlain replied:

"It would not be desirable for me to make any statement in regard to this matter at present."

This strengthened parliamentary opinion that the government is clinging to the hope some policy of debt relief or suspension will be announced from Washington before the World Economic Conference convenes June 12.

PUPPY TESTS ARE SUCCESS

San Francisco, June 1.—Bicarbonate of soda puppies and, scientific or not, every one a male, was the claim here to-day of Mr. and Mrs. Roland H. Smith.

A doctor friend, they said, told them a new scientific theory, developed in Germany, was that prospective mothers whose blood is alkaline produce males, while acid-blooded mothers give birth to females.

The Smiths said they fed a prospective wire-haired terrier mother bicarbonate of soda. The result: a litter of five males. They tried it again on another mother and four male puppies arrived. The Smiths said the usual litter without the soda diet was half male and half female.

FRANCE BUDGETS FOR DEFICIT

Associated Press

Paris, June 1.—After seven months of wrangling, the French parliament to-day finally approved the 1933 budget, carrying a deficit of $145,000,000. Expenditures totaling 49,270,710,242 francs are anticipated in the budget. Of that total 3,196,000,000 francs will be for the compulsory amortization of the national debt. The estimated revenue is set at 45,645,851,502 francs. (The franc currently is quoted at about 4 1/2 cents.)

Since constitutionally the obligatory appropriation for the amortization fund reduces the national debt, the government estimates its real operating deficit at only 428,000,000 francs.

W. and K. McLean Face Hearing June 26 in Alberta; Farmer Was Slain

Canadian Press

Vegreville, Alta., June 1.—William and Kenneth McLean, brought back here from Tennessee after a long police hunt, will stand trial here June 26, charged with slaying W. J. Parsille, farmer of the Mannville, Alta., district, in September last.

When Kenneth and his son, William, appeared in court yesterday for preliminary hearing, Magistrate Gores-Hickman remanded them for trial. Their hearing had lasted two days, with testimony from thirty-five witnesses. It was announced "several" witnesses would be brought from Tennessee to testify at the June 26 trial.

A sensation was caused yesterday when it was revealed two thin steel saws had been found, cleverly concealed in William's coat. They had been brought all the way from Knoxville, Tenn., where the McLeans had been in jail before being returned to Canada. Following the finding of the saws, four R.C.M.P. officers were ordered constantly to guard William and his father.

On Tuesday police announced they had found, concealed in William's tie, a tiny hand-made key for handcuffs placed on him by officers. Testimony in court further revealed an aunt of William had smuggled four saws to him while he was in the Tennessee jail and that he had used them to escape temporarily.

Eugene Ward, thirty-eight, in jail with William in Knoxville, testified at the preliminary hearing that William had made a confession of the Parsille killing.

Those contributing to the programme were: The Misses Nellie Richardson and Ellen Ball, Teddy Dever, Muriel Gellie, Nan Seymour, Molly Richardson, Douglas Brownsey, Doris Thompson and Ronald Pitton.

League Will End War Eventually, Says Tory

Ten Wars Prevented During Last Fifteen Years Through League's Efforts

"One of the marvels of the last fifteen years is the manner in which the League of Nations has maintained the peace of Europe, preventing war at least ten times in that period, and this in spite of the almost overwhelming difficulties which beset them in the way of racial hatreds, the memory of ancient wrongs, and differences which always arise between large and small powers."

This was the expressed opinion of Dr. Henry M. Tory, president of the National Research Council of Canada, when he addressed the League of Nations Society of Canada, Victoria branch, at the Crystal Garden auditorium yesterday evening on the subject of the league as a working democratic institution.

reasoning criticisms hurled at the league in recent times. Dr. Tory declared that it would yet settle the international disputes of Europe without resorting to war. Criticisms which he said had been leveled at the league chiefly because it had on more than one occasion been forced to make decisions which were compromises instead of ultimatums to disputing nations, were made because of ignorance of history and a lack of understanding of the traits and characteristics of the people of the world.

The League of Nations had been formed in the first place, stated Dr. Tory, in an effort to set up a government of nations as nearly identical to the form of government used by democratic nations in the world to-day as possible. It had, however, certain important differences. It was not a parliament founded on a majority and it had no police force or organized army to carry out its decisions. Its purpose was not then and is not yet, he said, dictatorial. It was a new departure in governing—moral suasion instead of armed force.

"Such a form of authority will take time to operate perfectly," said Dr. Tory. "The very people who criticize it for its lack of perfection, who expect it to be perfect, remain apparently satisfied with imperfect administration in their own governments. No governing body is perfect, no court of justice is perfect, no matter how learned the men may be who hold the authority and make the decisions, because the element of human frailty must always be a factor to be contended with."

"In comparison to the troubles which the league has to face, those of ordinary administrative bodies are simple. Racial passions, partisanship and the everlasting struggle between greater and lesser nations for supremacy would tax the ability of any administrative body. People are asking the league to operate with a perfection they do not ask in any other democratic organization. It must come eventually, but it takes time and for the present we must accept compromise just as we do in our own governments."

AFTERMATH OF CONFLICT

It was unthinkable, said Dr. Tory, that we could ever be a satisfactory means of settling disputes. The damage done by the last war in loss of life and money was still burdening civilization and the great army of unemployed to-day formed part of the terrible aftermath of that conflict.

"Everything possible has been done and is still being done," he said, "to prevent a recurrence of such a slaughter but fear, distrust, memories of old wrongs and hesitancy in placing trust in the machine of the league by many of the nations, for fear that it may break down and leave them stranded, has made it doubly difficult. If people knew too, if you knew and believed how arduous manufacturers have brought pressure to bear all during this time to prevent agreements being reached for world peace, you would annihilate every arms factory in the world."

"The progress of the league, though slow, is steady," said Dr. Tory, and the confidence of the nations of the world is growing. It is a fact that were the league withdrawn to-day, the machinery of our civilization would break down, so necessary has it become. One of the greatest aids in bringing the league of nations to the point of perfection, is the educational force of societies such as this—societies which exist in every country in the world and which will do more towards teaching the people the real value of co-operation in world

SPECIAL MUSIC TO BE OFFERED

Sacred Cantata "Seven Words" Will Be Given By First United Choir Sunday

On Sunday evening next, at the regular service, the choir of the First United Church will render one of the great musical masterpieces, the sacred cantata, "Seven Words of Christ," composed by Theodore Dubois. This is one of the finest works from the pen of a French composer and music lovers will welcome this opportunity of hearing the work.

Dubois wrote the "Seven Words of Christ" during his tenure as organist at St. Clothilde Church, one of the famous Paris cathedrals. It will be remembered that the name of Caesar Franck, the great Belgian organist, is also associated with St. Clothilde, as he presided at the organ there for over thirty years.

Dubois is one of the distinguished French composers and for years was professor at the Conservatory of Music in Paris. He is best known as the composer of this cantata, which is used extensively throughout the world of music. The first performance of the work was given in St. Clothilde Church.

The entire work is the story of the Crucifixion and the music well illustrates the text. There are beautiful solos, duets and massive choruses, the outstanding numbers being the about of Pilate when they cry "Death doth He merit" and the mockery when Christ hung on the Cross. "Thou Who wouldst destroy the Temple, save Thyself."

The soprano solos will be sung by Mrs. W. H. Wilson, the tenor solos by W. C. Fyfe, and the baritone solos by F. J. Mitchell.

A. J. Murray will preside at the organ and L. A. Baker, assistant conductor, will direct the chorus.

SCOUT NEWS

RECALLS EARLY DAYS IN CITY

Builder of Mexico City's Largest Hotel Went to School Here With Premier Tolmie

Thomas Sinclair Gore, founder of the famous Hotel Geneva in Mexico City, recalled on his recent visit here, that he first came to Victoria as a boy of five years, fifty-nine years ago.

He traveled here aboard the sidewheeler San Salvador from San Francisco in 1874 with his mother. His father had come west from Port Garry to settle, and it was the only way they could get here to rejoin him.

"I was thinking about that trip while I was coming up the Coast on the Santa Paula," before going on to the Chicago fair.

"I remember it well. It took us seven days to make the trip from San Francisco in the San Salvador."

In those early days Victoria was nothing more than a Hudson's Bay post.

Mr. Gore was raised and educated in this city. His father, a native of Gore's Landing, Rice Lake, Ontario, was a civil engineer who went to the United States on railroad construction work.

Mr. Gore was born in Ocala, Iowa, but when he was two years old his father came back to Canada to follow his profession at Port Garry.

Many prominent Victorians of today were schoolmates of Mr. Gore in his boyhood days here. They include Premier Tolmie, Senator G. H. Barnard, Fred Pemberton and Joe Wilson.

The old Collegiate School, which he attended, used to be located on the hill just below the old cathedral. Rev. Mr. Mogg was principal of the school at that time.

After finishing his education, Mr. Gore was articled to the Albion Iron Works, then operated by Andrew Gray, and while with that firm he became an efficient draughtsman. He was nineteen years old when he went to Mexico. After his arrival in Mexico in 1889 he followed the architectural profession.

He realized the need of a modern hotel in Mexico City, and for a long period worked on projects to provide one. In the fall of 1906 he started the construction of the Hotel Geneva, and opened the hotel a year later.

California Seance And Cheesecloth

Associated Press
San Francisco, June 1.—Police and not spirits brought cheesecloth to a seance conducted by J. J. Dickson, on trial for allegedly inducing Dr. Frank Bishop to commit suicide, defence witnesses testified here today.

Policeman Charles Brown of Oakland previously had testified for the prosecution he had unwound the cheesecloth from Dickson after the latter had jumped through a French window during a raid.

Mrs. Augusta Coran, Alameda, a defence witness, testified she had seen the officer come to the seance attempting to conceal "a bunch of cheesecloth." Mrs. Coran declared she had known for years that Dickson could summon actual spirits from "Azura-land."

The prosecution charges Dickson used the supposed spirits to "invite" Mr. Bishop to join them.

Witnesses in French courts are permitted to tell more than the truth. Even their imaginations may be resorted to in testifying.

Look OUT!! The Fire Engines!

The third of a series of Traffic Situations—a clearer understanding of which will promote safer and better driving in British Columbia

Measured by every mechanical test and under every known driving condition, you are always safer if you use 3-Star.

HERE'S a crowded downtown intersection! Green light indicates right-of-way for north-southbound traffic and has been visible 10 seconds. Street car "A" and vehicles "B" "C" and "D" are under way. YOU, driving car "X" are waiting to turn west as street car "E", making a slower start, waits your clearance. At this moment FIRE SIRENS are heard and the engines come dashing up from the south!

What are you supposed to do?

How about A, B, C, D and E?

This is a poser. See if you can figure it out. Answers on page 17

The following programme was enjoyed: Highland fling, Josephine Gola and Miss Marion De Clarke; piano solo, Miss Florence Delcourt; acrobatic dance, Miss Dorothy Gola; Highland fling, Miss Maureen Lowe and the Misses Myrtle and Esther Johnson; tap dancing, Miss Bell Beattie. Refreshments were served. Dancing brought to a close an enjoyable time.

Miss Pheme Nicholson entertained the members of the Ladysmith Bridge Club at her home Tuesday evening. Prizes were won by Miss Myrtle Nicholson and Mrs. F. Vandecasteyen. Refreshments were served.

VOTE AGAINST AMALGAMATION

Emmanuel Baptist Congregation Does Not Favor Affiliation With First Baptist

Amalgamation of the First and Emmanuel Baptist Churches of the city was opposed by an overwhelming vote of the latter congregation, taken at a special meeting yesterday evening. The proposal to affiliate was turned down on the grounds that it was not in the best interests of denominational work of the city churches.

The First Baptist voted in favor of the amalgamation two weeks ago, at which time the vote of the Emmanuel Church was deferred.

The meeting yesterday evening was marked with open discussion on the subject, although it was made plain that there was no antipathy between the organizations. The congregation, however, did not feel that the affiliation would be in the best interests of church work.

The Wilkinson Road Young People's Society held their annual banquet in the church Tuesday evening. The guests of the evening included members of the United Church Young People's Council, and those who had assisted with the programmes during the last year. Following the banquet, several toasts were given, including: "A Toast to the King," by Fred Quick; "A Toast to the Young People's Union," by Ian Humphries, replied to by Gordon Carless, and "A Toast to Wilkinson Road Y.P.S.," by Mrs. W. J. Jewell, replied to by Miss O. Congdon, who at the same time gave a report of the year's work. The president, Miss Dorothy Hodgson, welcomed the guests, after which the group was favored with speeches by Rev. J. H. A. Warr and Rev. W. Allan. As a fitting close to the banquet, Miss Grace Murray, on behalf of the group, spoke of the untiring efforts of the leader, Mrs. W. Quick, and her interest in the welfare of the society, following which a presentation of a leather handbag was made to her by little Nancy Williamson. During the interval, Rev. Warr, accompanied by Rev. Allan, led the gathering in a sing-song, after which games and contests were enjoyed.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

Work of Sisters Is Extolled By Speakers

Many Clerical and Lay Visitors at Big Celebration at St. Ann's Convent Yesterday; Tablet to Pioneer Sisters Unveiled With Fitting Ceremony; Pupils in Charming Programme

In speech and song and verse, the work of the Sisters of St. Ann in British Columbia and Alaska was extolled in the two programmes held at the convent yesterday afternoon as part of the celebration commemorating the arrival in Victoria of the first band of pioneer Sisters in 1858. Catholic bishops, clergy and sisters from all parts of the northwest, together with past and present pupils of St. Ann's, nurses of St. Joseph's, and a big array of interested friends of the two institutions, joined in the celebration to honor the memory of the heroic women to whose work the present academy and hospital form a fitting and lasting monument.

The main part of the programme was held in the flag-bedecked quadrangle at the back of the convent, the speakers being assembled on the balcony, with the audience below, the white-gowned pupils being drawn up in the background. The Victoria Boys' Band in their smart and colorful uniforms assisted in the programme, led by Bandmaster G. H. E. Green. Alderman James Adam acted as chairman.

MAYOR'S ADDRESS

Mayor Leeming extended on behalf of the City a hearty welcome to the visitors who came from distant parts to assist in the celebration. He observed that the history of the Sisters of St. Ann was wrapped up with that of the city, which was only a few years old when the first little band of Sisters arrived. Since that day they had carried on God's work among the broken in spirit and body.

The mayor read a history of the sisterhood, written for the occasion by Sister Mary Mark. "Whatever is of God grows and fructifies," and the narrative revealed the growth of the order since its inception and its ramifications in hospitals and schools throughout Canada from east to west, with particular reference to the humble beginning in Victoria and its development here.

Without a thought of self, the pioneer Sisters had labored unceasingly for the love of God, with self-sacrifice and self-abnegation, and to-day's fine hospital and schools here and throughout British Columbia and the north were a lasting monument to their magnificent work, said the mayor. He paid tribute to the Sisters for the training of the children in the academy, in whom they had inculcated the highest ideals.

TABLET UNVEILED

Little Mary Heimken, a great-granddaughter of Dr. Sebastian Heimken, who was associated with the work of the pioneer Sisters, then unveiled the tablet which is to be placed on the old pioneer log cabin to commemorate the heroic work of the Sisters seventy-five years ago.

The mayor then placed a beautiful floral tribute of calla lilies, the gift of the city, upon the tablet. A letter of regret at his unavoidable absence in Vancouver, coupled with congratulations to the Sisters upon their splendid record of service, was read from His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

A pretty episode was the human acrobatic, "Diamond," spelled by Madeleine Cloutier, Mary Doherty, Mary Hynes, Ann Allen, Margaret Turner, Violet Stanley and May Shrimpton, who held the glittering letters of the word as they recited lines in tribute to the work of the pioneer-nuns.

JUDGE McPHILLIPS

Reference to the signal figure who was the first Bishop of Vancouver Island, Bishop Modeste Demers, and who introduced the congregation of St. Ann, was made by Mr. Justice McPhillips in his address. He recalled the arrival of the then Father Demers on the lower Columbia in 1858, his subsequent ordination as Bishop, and his instrumental part in bringing the first Sisters to this part of the world.

The speaker also paid tribute to Father Rondeau and his valuable contribution to the ecclesiastical history of Vancouver Island. The establishment of the various convent schools on Vancouver Island was also touched upon, and the enlargement of the work into Alaska and the interior of British Columbia. The Sisters of St. Ann constituted an institution which had proved its value to the community as a whole, and in their long records of service had done much in the way of public service by caring for the indigent sick and assuming the burden of educating the young.

In conclusion he read a poem specially written for the occasion by a former pupil of the convent school, and dedicated to the Sisters.

BISHOP MURRAY

Bishop Murray noted that the present ceremonies enlivened the pioneer convent and the pioneer school, and he reminded the gathering that the Sisters also started the pioneer hospital in Victoria. He read from early documents a description of the receiving of the first patient in 1875 at the humble building which housed the Sisters in those early days. "To-day we are doing honor to the heroic women who entered into that primitive hut and called it home; we are doing honor to those who have so nobly carried on their work," he concluded.

PUPILS' PROGRAMME

Prior to the open-air proceedings an interesting ceremony took place in the auditorium of the academy. The main body of the hall was filled with the girls in their snowy frocks, and some of the smaller boys, while on the platform were seated Archbishop Duke of Vancouver, Bishop Crimont of Alaska, Bishop Murray, Mayor Leeming and other dignitaries, members of the province, Rev. Mother Provincial, and other Sisters.

Gladwyn Beasley and June Byron opened the programme with a piano duet. The programme was arranged to represent a "Jubilee Narrative" in six chapters, the girls rehearsing the scenes between Ella May, Sheila Brown, Irene Burns, Barbara Severe and Victoria Edna-Canavan. Miss Caro Jones-Evans gave the principal pupils' address, and the programme concluded with brief addresses by Bishop Murray, Bishop Crimont and the archbishop, who especially praised the children for the musical part of the entertainment.

LUNCHEON FOR CLERGY

A luncheon for the clergy took place at St. Joseph's Hospital at midday. Covers were laid for thirty-two guests, the table being beautifully decorated with yellow and pink roses and lavender sweet peas. An orchestra, under Mr. Schofield's direction, played selections.

Rev. C. E. Evans was the toastmaster, and introduced all the speakers, the toasts and those giving responses, being as follows: "His Holiness the Pope," responded to by Archbishop Duke of Vancouver; "The King," Rev. Anselm B. W. Wood; "Bishop Demers, the Pioneer Bishop," responded to by Bishop Murray; "Yesterday," responded to by Bishop Monahan of Calgary, and "To-day," responded to by Bishop Bunos of Prince Rupert.

I.O.D.E. ENDOWMENT FUND GREW DURING LAST YEAR

Reports Show Much Progress in Organization; Hospital Question Settled

British Films Growing in Popularity in Canada, Miss Arnold Reports

Canadian Press
Edmonton, June 1.—Real progress not only in organization and planning of details, but in the actual raising of money for the I.O.D.E. endowment fund was reported by the National convener, Mrs. John A. Stewart of Perth, at the National Chapter meeting of the order here to-day.

All nine provinces and Yukon territory have assisted in contributing, since the fund was opened two years ago, $8,048, of which $6,144 was raised this year. Mrs. Stewart recommended that a convener for the endowment fund be appointed in each primary chapter. Another step forward has been the addition of provincial treasurers on the committee.

I.O.D.E. HOSPITAL

The final report on the I.O.D.E. hospital at Halesbury, Ont., a matter on which the order has been working since its inception, was made on behalf of the convener of the northern Ontario fire relief committee, Rebecca M. Church. Reports of the distinguished visitors and hospital committee members, said Miss John Arnold, national convener of films, at the National Chapter meeting of the I.O.D.E. here to-day.

Forty-nine British films were shown throughout the Dominion in the past year. While no one claimed anything near perfection for the British film, general opinion was that the bulk of British pictures were an improvement over United States productions, Miss Arnold said in referring to their wholesomeness and restraint.

MORE CANADIAN NEWS

New studios are being built, more capital flowing into the industry and the standard of output is being constantly raised. The result had already been noted in increased profits. Mrs. Stewart expressed by the National Chapter at the marked absence of Canadian items from the news film exhibited in Canada theatres, reacted in the situation being greatly improved.

Although immigration has practically ceased, the year has been of great activity for the immigration committee. Rosetta Joseph of Quebec. There has been a change in form, but not in volume, with Canadianization greatly to the fore. Thousands of native-born cards, fittingly designed, have been distributed throughout the Dominion at fitting ceremonies to impress the new Canadian with his citizenship.

MANY APPLY FOR MISSIONS

But Finances Limit Number Accepted, Presbyterian W.M.S. Told

Toronto, June 1 (Canadian Press).—Mingled feelings pervaded the meeting of the executive council of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada yesterday, when Mrs. D. Inglis Grant reported that while there had been seventy-six applicants for positions in various missionary fields since March 1932, the candidates committee had for financial and other reasons, been able to accept only a small proportion of these.

Many were genuinely interested in missionary work and had been asked to hold their applications with the hope that the future would open a way for their going out under the W.M.S. auspices.

A.Y.P.A. COUNCIL PLANS PICNIC

Final plans have been made for the annual A.Y.P.A. picnic which is being sponsored by the Victoria and District Local Council. This will take place on July 1 at the Experimental Farm, Sidmouth. The transportation committee is arranging for buses to leave the city at 12:30 p.m., and all branch secretaries are requested to see Miss Holyoak in this connection.

The sports committee promises an interesting programme and keen competition between the branches is expected. The banner to be competed for is at present held by St. Alban's branch. It is hoped that all A.Y.P.A. members will endeavor to be present and make the picnic a real success.

Rockland Park W.C.T.U.—Rockland Park W.C.T.U. will meet at the home of Mrs. McGibbon, 1268 Mackenzie Street, on Monday, July 3, at 3 p.m. Important business will be discussed and all members are invited to attend.

TITLED WOMAN OPENS COLONY

Elizabeth, Lady Mosley, Trustee of New Healing Cult in England

"Harmony Healers" Praying For 10,000 Sick All Over the World

Elizabeth, Lady Mosley, grandmother of Sir Oswald Mosley, has opened a new colony of "Harmony Healers" in England in a Jacobean mansion on an estate of 200 acres of land at West Malling, Kent. Prior to the formal opening of the colony, the estate was known as Addington Park, but it has been rechristened the "City of Prayer." Lady Mosley is the trustee of the colony and is "drawn to its members as 'Mother Elizabeth'."

The movement started with the Harmony Prayer Circle in Fimlitz, London, C. A. Simpson, the founder, claiming the power of spiritual healing. The various circles will now have their home at Addington Hall, which has twenty-five rooms. These rooms will be let to people who want to become permanent residents or who will stay there while their own houses are being built inside the city walls. The building of little cloisters in various parts of the estate is contemplated.

The great point, however, is that they will all be within handy distance of Addington Park, the home for the Harmony Prayer Circles. Already there are twelve Harmony Prayer Chapels. They used to be stables.

10,000 CLIENTS
Seven chairs are set out in each chapel for the use of "seekers." If seven seekers are not available, all the chairs remain, while six or five or even four seekers pray for the ailing.

Ten thousand people all over the world are being prayed for at the moment. Some are sick physically, some mentally, while others ask for prayers for more material assistance. A time-limit of fifteen seconds for each case has been imposed. When the selected day and time arrives, the sufferer must pray and then relax. Meanwhile, the seekers are, in their turn, praying for him.

At the formal opening recently the deeds of the estate were handed to Lady Mosley, after which Lieut.-Col. Belk was appointed president of the movement. After the service, the guests and the seekers went to the cloisters in the "garden of remembrance." Here, the band of healers in white coats linked hands and outlined the form of a cross on the grass, while the Mary Chapel was dedicated by Mr. Simpson.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERED

BABY WHO CRIES AT REGULAR HOURS IS NOT SPOILED

To assert that baby is spoiled is too ready an explanation for the various conditions which lead him to cry. We are more inclined to make baby's disposition bear the blame than to blame ourselves for the crying. It is likewise undesirable to explain a baby's actions on the basis of the mother's experiences before birth. As soon as the baby is born he is a separate organism and what he does is controlled by his experiences in the world.

RAPID GAIN

Mrs. P. J. L. says her six weeks' old baby, who weighed eight and three-fourths pounds at birth, now weighs eleven pounds. "Before" baby was born, I had an unusually active bowel condition. I have never given the baby anything to make her bowels move and now for the past two or three days they move three and four times, in fact, every time she nurses. I don't think it is because of anything I have eaten that they are so loose.

"She is very good most of the day, but from 6 to 8 o'clock every night she cries a good deal. I have tried to let her cry it out as I think she is spoiled, but it seems she just won't give in."

From the rate of gain, I would consider that baby's bowel activity is due to overfeeding. You did not mention how often she was being fed, but I imagine too often. Feed the baby at 6, 10, 2 and 6 o'clock and 10 and 2 at night. However, omit the 2 a.m. feeding if baby does not wake for it.

As for the spooling, provided this was true, baby would be spoiled at other hours of the day and not regularly from 6 to 8 at night. More than likely, overfeeding is causing an accumulation of indigestible food at this late hour, and baby cries from colic. Or, despite the bounteous nursings the rest of the day, the breast may secrete less generously at this hour and baby may be hungry. There seems no reason to allow the baby to become habituated to crying for two hours when, by offering a complementary feeding, we may do away with the dissatisfaction, or by diminishing the number of feeding periods we may end the colic.

Perhaps the leaflets, "Why Babies Cry at 6 p.m.," and "The First Six Weeks," will be of assistance to you. You may have one or both by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to this department. To-morrow, "Bottle Drinking Taboo Second Year."

"The Sealed Trunk"

By HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER

"They were trying to find you," he said, "before somebody else did; somebody they are afraid of or are trying to take advantage of; an old man they spoke of as 'C. J.' Do you know who he is?"

"I haven't the remotest idea in the world," she said. "Apparently the question was a relief to her, for she added, 'Can't you see now it's all nonsense?'"

"Sit still another minute anyhow and listen to the rest of it. Then perhaps you won't think it's nonsense."

"It was the woman who seemed most excited about you. She told Max it was his job to find out when you lived, to-night. She said it didn't matter whether he took you home or followed you home. She said that as soon as they knew that, they'd have C. J. wherever he is—where they wanted him. She said there wasn't any time to waste because you might see that ad in the paper any day and answer it."

She'd snatched her hand away long before he'd finished speaking. Now, in furious exasperation, she cried, "I—I—I! Why do you keep talking about me? Why should I answer an advertisement for Rhoda McFarland? I won't. I'll tell you that much, anyway. And I won't let Max Lewis take me home, either, if that's any satisfaction to you."

"How will you keep him from following you home?"

He saw she flinched at that, and added, "Let me go with you now. We can give them the slip. Why not? Why won't you?"

"Because it's all nonsense," she said weakly. "Because I want to stay and dance."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "If you won't let me take you home, I'll follow you myself and see that he doesn't."

She was angrier than he now, and apparently colder. "Why are you so anxious to find out where I live?" she asked. "Because you think I'm Rhoda McFarland? And there must be a story about me if I'm advertised for, and you want to get it for the paper? Is that the way reporters do?"

It didn't occur to him until quite a bit later to wonder how she knew he was a reporter. For the moment he just sat and stared at her, stupefied at the gross injustice she had done him. Before he could get himself together to controvert the monstrous charge, he perceived the harmless, unnecessary Higgins standing before them.

Rhoda saw him too and sprang to her feet. "Do you want me to dance this one with you?" she asked him. "I'd love to."

Martin, boiling away inside like a teakettle, followed them as far as the edge of the dance floor and stood there a while making up his mind what he should do next. Not really that, perhaps, he conceded afterward, so much as fanning his perfectly righteous indignation and rather enjoying it.

Presently, though, his reflections ceased to be even dubiously enjoyable. A chill mingling blew over him that Rhoda might be right after all. Lewis, he noted, was dancing with Babe Jennings with a contented absorption inexplicable under the hypothesis that his only interest to-night lay in taking or following another girl home. What Martin perceived this, he turned away disgustedly and went home himself.

CHAPTER II

Rhoda tried to tell herself she was glad she had snubbed Martin. For, she enjoyed, after a fashion, the consciousness of his glaring at her from the edge of the dance floor, but when she perceived that he was no longer there and came to the conclusion that he'd really abandoned her, she found rather suddenly that she was tired of the Alhambra for to-night and wanted to go home. And although she mainly laid that Martin's suspicions of Max Lewis were wild nonsense, she was rather glad that Leander Higgins offered to take her home.

Their trip, mostly by trolley car, was entirely without incident. Of course it would be. Max had made up the whole thing out of his own head. She was as friendly as a new friend to be to Leander all the way to the studio door but at that point she said good night to him firmly. It had only been by the exercising of a good deal of self-control that she'd kept her mind on him up to that point. And until Babe came home she wanted to be alone.

As she glanced around the studio after shutting the door on Leander Higgins he fell on to-night's News scattered about the floor, as her roommate had left it. Was that advertisement really in the paper, or had Martin Forbes made that up, too? No, there it was in the personal column, just as he'd said. "Rhoda McFarland will learn something from her advantage."

She dropped into Babe's chair and the section of the paper slid from a cack hand back to the floor.

It had given her a surprising shock to see her discarded name in print like that. It brought things back that she'd thought she was done with forever: some things that she hadn't thought about in years.

Their yard at home, with the venerable live oak in the middle of it, in whose branches she and her three inseparable friends used to scramble about like young monkeys; the three A's they used to call them because their names all began that way—Ann, Alice, and Amy. They were all in the same grade; seventh it was, when her father told her one morning that she wasn't to go to school any more for the present. For the present! She'd never gone to school again; not since that day. And Amy and Alice and Ann faded out of the picture. They didn't come to play in her yard any more.

And she had understood that it was because of something that was spoken of, when it was mentioned at all, as the trial her father's trial—Prof. Walter Whitehouse McFarland. She'd had a glimpse of his name once in black headlines in the newspaper. Her father had stopped being a professor the same time she'd stopped going to school. He was at home all the time, and for a while—though whether it was days or weeks she couldn't remember—they'd made a sort of pretence of having school at home with him for teacher. Interrupted harassed days those were, with people coming to see him and being sometimes told that he was out, even when she knew he wasn't; reporters and men with cameras taking pictures of the house, when they couldn't get anything else.

There were a few days toward the end, just before they left California for good, when he had been away from home all the time and she had known, somehow, that the trial was going on.

Also she had known before she saw him on his return, though again the source of her knowledge eluded her memory, that the outcome of it had been favorable to him, that he had "got off." She must be right about that since she still so vividly remembered her disappointment and perplexity, when she saw him again, over the fact that there was nothing triumphant about him; that he had been, if possible, whiter and more bitterly silent than ever.

She'd hoped he would tell her what the trial had been about. He had never, even in after years, told her that. Only once, that she knew of, had his spirit flashed up.

This had happened when her Uncle William—he must have been her dead mother's brother—he couldn't have been her father's—had come to see them, after the trial and before they started east. She couldn't remember ever having seen him before, but she did remember the falsely genial smile with which he had reproached her for having forgotten him.

He'd been an ogre to her ever since. Her father had not been afraid of him. He'd sent her from the room on Uncle William's saying that her father could probably guess what he'd come to see him about. She'd obediently gone, but only as far as her bedroom, and the boom of the ogre's voice had come through the thin walls all too clearly. He'd come to try to make her father give her away, for ever, to him. He'd spoken of her, terrifyingly, as "the child." But her father, though quiet and conciliatory at first, had finally defied her uncle and told him to go straight to hell.

She'd never heard him swear before or since and she had thought that of reason of his aching her, after her uncle had gone, whether she had heard any of their talk. Anyhow, it hadn't been why she told him she had not.

She hadn't understood much of it at the time, beyond her uncle's assertion that her father had disgraced himself and wasn't a fit person to bring up a child. She must, though, have stored up a good many uncomprehended phrases of that talk, or how could she have been so sure, two or three years later, when she read in the newspaper of a sensational prosecution of another professor named Mann at that this was the kind of trial her father had had?

Her father, of course, hadn't been sent to prison. He had "got off." But why, if he "didn't do the horrible thing," hadn't he gone back to the college and she to school and Amy and Alice and Amy come to play with her again? Probe? Because people had thought "he'd done it, anyhow."

Their departure from the little university town out in California had felt like running away to her and, she was sure, to her father, also. There was one incident about the journey which she remembered very clearly. Her father's voice had faded and she'd looked up to see if he'd fallen asleep. He wasn't asleep, but staring out over the desert; with such a look of pain in his face that she burst into tears.

He'd comforted her very tenderly and had said to her the only thing she thought, that he'd ever said in direct reference to the catastrophe: "I've got you," he told her, "and they can't take you away from me. And I'm going to— to it that you shouldn't be the loser by this thing that's happened to me. In the long run it may be just as well for you that it did happen."

At the time she'd had no idea what he'd meant by that. But the events of the later years of his life made it clear enough. He'd had a scheme of some sort, now that she wasn't a college professor any more, for making her rich. A scheme that he'd never brought off, to be sure, but one that had down to the very night of his death he'd never lost hope about.

As it had worked out, it was that of his, always on the point of coming true, that had been the cause of most of her unhappiness during the four long years they had lived in that Chicago hotel. She didn't know that she regretted them now. That made a pretty hard sort of problem to say out. Most people, certainly, would say it was a horrible way for a child to be brought up.

FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1933

Good and evil planetary influences centered today, according to astrology. While benefic aspects are strong underneath, surface indications may be deceptive.

Women may be restless and dissatisfied while this rule prevails. Deeds for self-holds may be strong, especially when it may not be realized.

Widows and single girls are subject to a sway making for lateness and lack of interest. Stenographers should be especially industrious and conscientious.

This is foretold as a day unlucky for love affairs. Engagements or marriages made under this direction of the stars may be easily broken.

While astrologers predict for hotel managers and for producers of plays or other amusements a fairly lucrative summer, this may be an unprofitable day.

There is a sign believed to encourage divorce and family disintegration. The wise will exercise patience, for fashion is to frown upon persons who show little respect for marriage contracts.

Great Britain is subjected to a direction from the stars which is read as forbidding return to the gold standard until certain evil aspects of various effects on France, Italy, Russia, Roumania and Sweden disappear.

Mercury is strongly to direct the United States toward reorganization of industries and vast expansion of trade, it is prophesied.

Russia is to experience a period of great tribulation, the seeds for future are sown in form of government may be superseded by a new republic.

Again new foreign leaders are foreseen. All will follow the United States in many ideals and policies. It is predicted.

All the signs appear to be promising for the United States, but those who read the stars stress the need of patience or waiting that means working at what is offered.

Deliver Addresses Of Welcome To Scientists In Victoria To-day

Greatest Creator Of Well Paid Work Congress Informed

Dr. Tory in Presidential Address at Opening of Pacific Congress Here Points to Universality in Its Outlook

Corresponding Enlightenment in Statesmanship and Economics Suggested As Need to Overcome Dislocation of Industry and Trade

Science has been the greatest creator of opportunities for well-remunerated employment the world has known and with enlightenment in the fields of statesmanship and economics will guide the world to a new golden era, said Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council of Canada, and president of the fifth Pacific Science Congress in the presidential address at the opening session of the Congress at the Empress Hotel to-day.

"To claim that the results of scientific effort have resulted in over-production in a world where millions of people, as a result of the dislocation of industry and trade, are unemployed and unfed, is merely to acknowledge the fact that progress is producing a suitable economic structure, hindered as it has been by industrial stupidity and greed and by extreme nationalism. Policies on the part of statesmen, has not kept pace with the growth of knowledge and with world needs," Dr. Tory went on.

REPUDIATES ACCUSATIONS
"I personally repudiate with all the vehemence of nature the accusation that science has been responsible in any substantial way for our present difficulties, and assert with equal intensity that the hope of the future lies in adjusting our political-economic structure in such a way as to make full use not only of what science has done in the past, but what in a new and more intensive age she is bound to do in the future."

ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF CONGRESS
"Speaking for the scientific men of Canada, permit me to say, we welcome you with all our hearts," Dr. Tory said. "On an occasion like the present, one is tempted to review the history of the association under whose auspices we meet. As, however, this has been done so well on former occasions, I shall refrain from doing more than stating that, great as had been the progress made by men of science in the countries belonging to the Pacific Science Association, before its organization, the progress has been enormously increased as the result of the co-operation established between the scientific agencies at work in our various countries. The proceedings of the congress themselves are the evidence of this progress. A body of practical scientific information has been made available to the world of which this association may very well be proud. The comprehensive reports on our co-operative efforts which will be submitted to this Congress will speak for themselves."

FIELDS SURVEYED
"Before preparing the programme of this Congress, a complete survey was made of the fields of investigation reported at other meetings, and a plan for the Congress adopted, the purpose of which was to bring out clearly the progress to date, and to point the way to new fields of effort, and opportunity. I am sure you will agree with my statement when I say that this survey showed that there has come to all of us as a result of those congresses an enlarged outlook upon the problems of the Pacific area. Fields hitherto unrelated have been brought into association with one another, while new and hitherto untouched fields of work have been opened up. In my opinion, however, the greatest contribution of all that has been made is seen in the fact that the problems of the Pacific area are being viewed as a whole by groups of men who hitherto have viewed them only partially and with a local outlook."

INTERNATIONALISM IN SCIENCE
"I am sure you will not consider it out of place for me to call the attention of this Congress to the growth of international effort in science generally, of which the development in the Pacific area is but an illustration. Looking back over a period of years it will be seen how modern is organized national effort for the promotion of human betterment through the use of science. It is hard for us, living in the atmosphere of our time, to realize a world in which organized scientific effort did not exist. It is, however, true that the foundations of most of the national movements, as represented by the governments, are distinct from those movements which spring from groups of individuals interested mainly in the progress of knowledge, were laid within the memory of many of us present at this meeting."

ITS UNIVERSALITY NOTED
"Of the other hand, the universality of science is seen in the fact that no individual nation can claim special priority or a right of special possession of the scientific knowledge of the world, as the result of the efforts of the great scientific pioneers, had made enormous progress, that governments

generally awakened to the necessity of officially assisting the movement. "It is not pleasant to recall that in many countries a devastating war was necessary before that essential co-operation of governments with private individuals and institutions was made available for the promotion of scientific research in the definite interest of social and economic improvement."

TRENDS TOWARD CO-OPERATION
"That this movement should promptly take on an international aspect is in accord with the spirit of science. The last few years, therefore, have seen the movement of national organizations, such as our research councils, following the lines laid down by the pioneers, toward co-operation along international lines on a scale never dreamed of in former days. As evidence of this one need only point to the many international scientific organizations which meet periodically for the intimate study of world problems and to exchange views on the application of scientific principles."

"If one were to ask what is the reason of this coming together of national organizations in a common national, the answer is simple. It was the result of the almost universal recognition by thoughtful men of the part which science has played in the progress of civilization and the confidence that her part in future progress will be equally great."

SCIENCE MAJOR FACTOR
"I realize that I may be speaking to some who take an agnostic attitude as to whether what we have been in the habit of calling progress is progress in any real sense. If, however, it can be truthfully said, and in this I am sure we all agree, that the progress of civilization is the result of the experience of mankind, conserved and applied comprehensively to human betterment, and that such a progress is an improvement upon ignorance and barbarism, then, inasmuch as science has opened to us new avenues of experience in a manner never before realized in human history, it has opened the doors of knowledge or the universe in which we live and of our relation thereto, has enabled us to accumulate and conserve experience for the present and the future on a majestic scale, has shown us how to use hitherto unknown forces of nature to our advantage, surely if we can agree that civilization is real, then progress is real and science has been a major factor in producing both."

WHAT IT HAS BROUGHT MANKIND
"Without entering into any detail, a bird's-eye view of what has grown out of the application of science in modern life fills us with awe and admiration. "In the region of government, world-wide political reconstruction has been made necessary, due to the application of scientific principles to industry. "Industry has not only been revolutionized, but has been compelled to continually adjust itself to rapidly-changing conditions. "The wholesale transfer of populations from rural to urban conditions of life which has grown out of this industrial development has been a social problem, undreamed of by former generations, which urgently demand solution."

"More important still, the intellectual life of the world has been revolutionized, and the process is still going on. One needs only to call attention to the great scientific schools, pure and applied, which have become a part of the life of every civilized community, to realize the intellectual significance of scientific progress. Inter-action of those intellectual centers has been a powerful force in stimulating the international co-operation referred to before."

ALL SHARE IN ITS BETTERMENT
"But perhaps the greatest revolution of all is seen in the fact that the right of all to share in the betterment that springs from science, in contrast with intellectual dilettantism of a more scholastic age, has now been universally recognized. That this should be so, in the international sphere, was almost a foregone conclusion, because, as I have stated, science is of international origin and not to individual nations as a whole and not to individual nations."

"I would, however, with your permission, like to call attention to one further aspect of the social problem that has been created, namely, the development of the technical equipment of industry, which is an aspect of scientific development, and which is responsible, in part at least, for the great social problem of unemployment at the present time. It is not my intention to participate in controversy on this subject, but I deem it not out of place to call attention to the fact that, while scientific discovery in its application to the development of industry has created new conditions of life necessary, and in special ways has caused dislocation; nevertheless the fact remains that the creation of the technical equipment which are the outgrowth of scientific progress, has on the whole been the greatest creator of opportunities for well-remunerated labor that the world has known. One need only contemplate the great electrical and chemical industries of to-day, as they exist in all the progressive nations of the world, to justify the statement just made."

"I am not discussing the question as to whether the great increase of world population that modern science has made possible is a benefit to mankind. I do state, however, that the present population of the world could not be maintained under any other known conditions of science—under those which are the outgrowth of scientific progress."

SEES FUTURE SURPASSING
"He would be a foolish man who would predict what that future would be. I am, however, one of those who believe that by the intensification of scientific effort, by the control of that effort for the common good, by international co-operation to make scientific knowledge applied to the benefit and not to destructive uses, by the co-operation of statesmen to secure these ends, a future is possible to mankind so far surpassing in social well-being and intellectual achievement any that we have known, even the most attractive of bygone periods, that historians looking back upon this period will regard it as a beginning of the world, as the result of the efforts of the great scientific pioneers, had made enormous progress, that governments

generally awakened to the necessity of officially assisting the movement. "It is not pleasant to recall that in many countries a devastating war was necessary before that essential co-operation of governments with private individuals and institutions was made available for the promotion of scientific research in the definite interest of social and economic improvement."

TRENDS TOWARD CO-OPERATION
"That this movement should promptly take on an international aspect is in accord with the spirit of science. The last few years, therefore, have seen the movement of national organizations, such as our research councils, following the lines laid down by the pioneers, toward co-operation along international lines on a scale never dreamed of in former days. As evidence of this one need only point to the many international scientific organizations which meet periodically for the intimate study of world problems and to exchange views on the application of scientific principles."

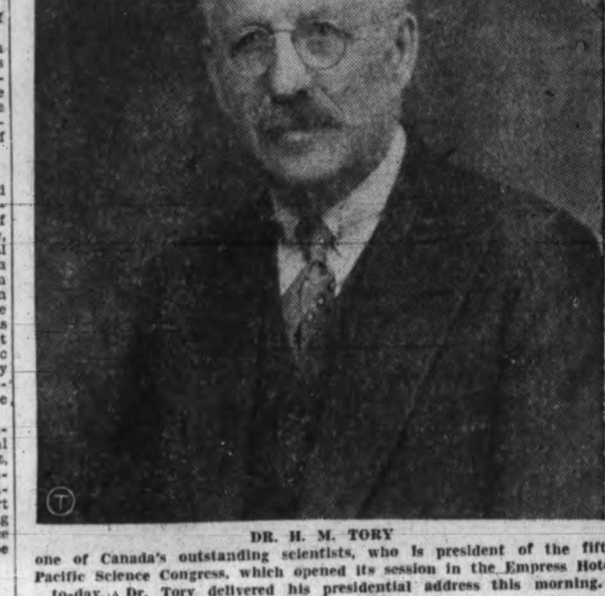

"If one were to ask what is the reason of this coming together of national organizations in a common national, the answer is simple. It was the result of the almost universal recognition by thoughtful men of the part which science has played in the progress of civilization and the confidence that her part in future progress will be equally great."

SCIENCE MAJOR FACTOR
"I realize that I may be speaking to some who take an agnostic attitude as to whether what we have been in the habit of calling progress is progress in any real sense. If, however, it can be truthfully said, and in this I am sure we all agree, that the progress of civilization is the result of the experience of mankind, conserved and applied comprehensively to human betterment, and that such a progress is an improvement upon ignorance and barbarism, then, inasmuch as science has opened to us new avenues of experience in a manner never before realized in human history, it has opened the doors of knowledge or the universe in which we live and of our relation thereto, has enabled us to accumulate and conserve experience for the present and the future on a majestic scale, has shown us how to use hitherto unknown forces of nature to our advantage, surely if we can agree that civilization is real, then progress is real and science has been a major factor in producing both."

PREDICTS JAPANESE RAIDS IN CHINA
E. R. Hughes, British University Man, Foresees Trouble in South China

Calgary, June 1.—It is time Canada thought for itself about the Japanese-Chinese conflict, according to E. R. Hughes, of Shanghai, member of the British Universities China Committee. Mr. Hughes is en route to England. Canada, he declared, should not wait for Britain or the United States to take the lead, but should draw her own conclusions regarding the struggle in the Far East. Mr. Hughes believed Japan in the near future would make sporadic raids on southern China, when foreign property would be destroyed.

"The Canadian people feel they have not much responsibility," he added, "they feel they will wait and see what Britain and the United States do. I don't believe that is worthy of Canada. Canadians have got to learn to think things out for themselves."

Sister Mary's NEW RECTOR APPOINTED
Rev. H. St. John Payne Will Aot at St. Saviour's Church, Victoria West

Rev. Hubert St. John Payne, M.A. has been appointed acting rector of St. Saviour's Church, Victoria West. Mr. Payne has been vicar of St. John's, Colwood, and St. Matthew's, Langford, for the last fifteen months.

Mr. Payne has been a member of the Diocese of Columbia since 1903, when he first came here from England, and although a retired clergyman, he has seen considerable church service during that time. In 1906 he took over the rectory of St. Paul's, Esquimalt, for two years, after which he was assistant priest of the Gulf Islands from 1912 to 1922. During the absence of Rev. George H. Andrews of St. Mary's, Oak Bay, Mr. Payne served in that parish.

He first accepted duties at Langford and Colwood in 1932, when Rev. A. L. Nixon left for England. He is expected to assume his new duties about the end of June, when Mr. Gardiner will take over St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt.

TWO FRUITS ARE NEEDED
He should have two fruits, one preferably raw. He should have for dessert a glass of milk, a slice of bread or toast and four glasses of water containing the list of foods necessary to maintain a balanced diet and provide an adequate number of calories.

If a child does not want to drink his milk, he may have the fruit in the form of vegetables, in soups and in desserts.

An easy way to plan a child's lunch is to include him the foods in the list of foods necessary to maintain a balanced diet and provide an adequate number of calories.

He should have for breakfast or dinner when the family are together. Then, if he is given his broiled chop or meat cake at noon, he may have the dinner vegetable provided for the rest of the family.

To-morrow's Menu
Breakfast: Shredded fresh pineapple, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, oven toast, milk, coffee.

Lunch: Green pea soup, croutons, grated carrot sandwiches, egg lemonade.

Dinner: Baked salmon trout, baked new cabbage with cheese sauce, lettuce and cucumber salad, tutti-frutti rice pudding, milk, coffee.

Very often the luncheon dessert can be counted as the "main dish" because a large amount of nourishment can be put into a small quantity of dessert. It is seldom wanted for dinner and adds variety if used for the noon meal.

When the dinner is hearty a simple luncheon of raw vegetable sandwiches, one hot cooked vegetable, a glass of milk and a nourishing dessert proves most satisfactory for hot noons. A vegetable salad with bread and butter sandwiches can take the place of vegetable sandwiches.

FOR NOURISHMENT'S SAKE
Drinks made of milk and eggs are nourishing and easily digested. They are very quickly made and children generally like them. It's a good plan to serve a cup of hot bouillon or a hot vegetable drink when a cold milk and egg drink is served.

Fruit juices also can be combined with eggs to make nourishing and invigorating drinks. When these are used, a hot vegetable cream soup with sandwiches of lettuce or some other green vegetable rounds out the meal.

ITALY'S AIR ARMADA POISED FOR ATLANTIC HOP

with men and machines tuned to concert pitch, General Italo Balbo, Italian Air Minister, is holding his flock of twenty-four seaplanes and their crews of nearly 100 men in readiness at Orbetello, Italy, for the start of the great mass formation flight to Chicago. The flight is Premier Mussolini's tribute to the Century of Progress Exposition. The starting date for the take-off was originally set for May 24, but weather conditions necessitated a postponement. Now, owing to ice conditions at the northern section of the route, the flight will probably be delayed until June 15 at the earliest. The route will take the roaring squadron from Orbetello to Amsterdam, Holland, thence to Londonderry, Ireland, whence it will make a sea hop to Reykjavik, Iceland. Refueling there, the armada will fly on to Cartwright, Labrador, thence to Quebec, Canada, and down the home stretch over the Great Lakes to Chicago.

NEW BRIDGE FOR GORGE OFFERED

Two Municipalities Willing to Accept $4,000 Span

Proposed New Structure Provides Roadway Sixteen Feet Wide

Replacement of the Gorge Bridge with a Howe truss span, which will provide a roadway sixteen and a half feet wide, was practically assured this morning, when municipal officials of Sanich and Esquimalt announced willingness to accept the government offer of yesterday.

The new bridge, it was announced, would be constructed practically solely by the government as an unemployment relief measure. Minor costs of building concrete piers and abutments, and of the wrecking of the existing bridge, will be borne jointly by the municipalities.

The preliminary plans in government hands provide for a seventy-foot span with seventeen-foot trestle approaches on either end. It is intended to re-align the bridge for better position, by moving the centre line about three and a half feet from its present position. There will be five-foot sidewalks on each side.

In offering to undertake the work as a relief measure, the province has overcome legal difficulties encountered in performing work outside its own area.

Although detailed cost are not yet obtainable, Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, stated this morning that the cost of the new bridge would be about $4,000.

Conservatives Scorn Dictation By Ottawa

Oak Bay Meeting Cold to Federal Members Views Regarding Convention

Four Types of Party May Appeal For Votes in British Columbia Contest

Since Ottawa does not govern nor dictate to the Conservative Party in British Columbia, any opinion federal members may have regarding a Conservative convention here, will not be taken seriously, R. D. Harvey said at an open meeting of Oak Bay Conservatives yesterday evening.

The meeting had been called, he declared, for the express purpose of finding the feeling of the ward in regard to its choice of nominee, so that when delegates were sent to the meeting of the Conservative Association in Victoria later, they could speak authoritatively for members of their ward.

Four distinct types of Conservatives which might be nominated at the next election were segregated after considerable discussion in the meeting, and a straw ballot, the result of which was not disclosed, taken to determine which type they favored. The four classifications cited were: "Tommy Conservatives," Bower Conservatives, Independent Conservatives and Conservative Independents. "Of the last two named the meeting decided to nominate themselves, while the latter are nominated by Conservative associations and given instruction to support whatever party they wish in the house after election."

Although results of the ballot were kept secret, open discussion in the meeting itself indicated a distinct tendency towards the Conservative Independent type of nominee.

The matter of federal interference came up when Purl Fleming declared that he had private information that federal members were of the opinion a convention of the whole party should take place in British Columbia, and suggested that the meeting be postponed for that reason. This prompted one of the gathering to ask the chairman, whether Ottawa governed the man, whether Ottawa governed the man, and if they had the right to dictate to Conservative associations.

Harvey replied that he thought not.

NANAIMO NOTES

Nanaimo, June 1.—The following prizes were awarded for floats participating in the Empire celebration parade: best organization or fraternal float, first, Elks Lodge; best commercial float, first, Kiwanis; second, Imperial Oil; best decorated car in parade, first, Gerald Buxton; second, Mosquito Club; best group of Indians, first, Simon McLean; second, Wilkes James.

The Nanaimo Women's Musical Club terminated a successful season with a social evening at the home of Mrs. C. H. Barker, Millstone Avenue. An interesting feature was the presentation of the burlesque to Master S. Humphreys for his splendid showing in the recent Musical Festival. During the evening a splendid programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered by the various members, with Mrs. Humphreys, Mr. Hinton and Mrs. Dunmore acting as accompanists. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Miss May Rogers' first aid junior girls' team won the McMillan cup at the competitions held in Vancouver for highest marks in the junior girls' class. Dr. Boucher remarked upon the cleverness of the team, and said it was the first time the much coveted trophy was going to Vancouver Island.

Mrs. T. A. Barnard presided over the monthly meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held in the Canadian Legion Hall yesterday afternoon. The committee endorsed and signified their willingness to co-operate with the association of Canadian Clubs to further promote nationalization scheme advanced by Mr. Justice A. K. Dyson, Winnipeg, designed to make the recognition more impressive and to include the presentation to each foreigner who bears allegiance to the King with an illuminated certificate.

COMING BACK—William Farnum, veteran of stage and screen, who has not appeared in pictures since 1923, is coming back. He will have a leading role in "Superstition," a picture which he started his stage career in. In his teens, played stock, had his own theatre in New York, was "the man" of the movies a decade ago. . . . Remember "The Spotters"?

Woman's Thanks to Kruschen

"I have been suffering from rheumatism for years. At one time I could scarcely walk with pain in my feet. The thumb of my left hand was so stiff I could only bend it with the aid of my right hand. I was afraid to go to bed, as my right hand and arm up to the elbow used to go numb, and the pain was just terrible until I started to take a half-teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast, and believe me I feel a different woman. I tell everyone what I take, and the good it has done me."—(Mrs.) W. A. B.

Kruschen contains six mineral salts which tone up the liver, kidneys and stomach, and keep them working smoothly and efficiently. The reward of this internal cleanliness is a freshened and invigorated blood-stream. Poisons are expelled through the natural channels, and the pains of rheumatism cease. And as you continue with Kruschen, your whole being—body and brain—responds to its purifying force. (Adv.)

HITLER VIEWS ARMED FORCE

In the centre of the world stage since pledging support for President Roosevelt's proposed non-aggression pact while insisting upon arms parity for Germany, Chancellor Adolf Hitler is shown here—in the most recent picture of him to reach Victoria—as he addressed 30,000 North German storm troops at Kiel.

Shortness of Breath Is Early Indication Of Weakened Heart

Gasping After Climbing Stairs or Other Slight Exertion
Means Poor Circulation or Lack of Oxygen

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

When a heart is unable to do its work successfully, it is not able to take in the blood that comes to it from the lungs and to push it around the circulation. As a result various symptoms develop.

Among the earliest and most important symptoms of weakness of the heart is breathlessness on slight exertion. Even healthy people get breathless on exercise. Thus, at the very earliest period in heart disease a person may become breathless too soon while exercising, and later become breathless with relatively slight activity. Therefore, one can grade the breathlessness associated with weakness of the heart by the amount of exertion that brings it on.

Anybody may become breathless from walking very fast or by climbing a flight of stairs. On the other hand, most people do not become breathless while walking slowly for short distances or while sitting quietly.

One of the causes of breathlessness is a deficiency in the flow of blood carrying oxygen to the head and neck. Another cause is the lack of oxygen in the blood due to the fact that the blood begins to collect in the veins and in the tissues farthest removed from the heart.

In the normal heart there is a great deal of reserve power. What the heart does while the human being is resting is but a small fraction of what it can do when it must. Sir Thomas Lewis considers that the heart has ten times as much power as is required for its work while a human being is sitting at rest.

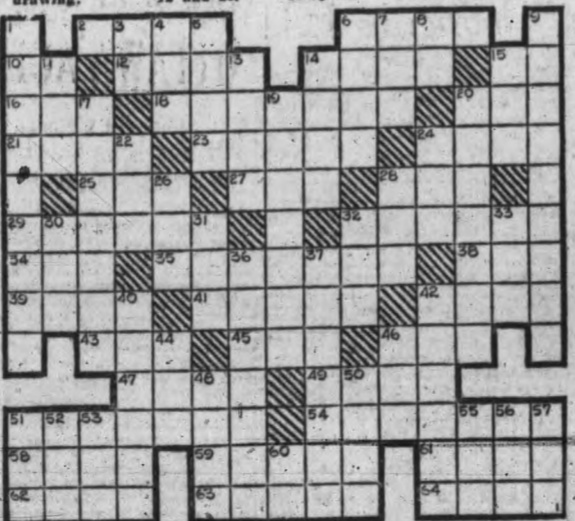

A train operating between Moscow and Tiflis, a journey taking seventy-six hours, has radio, telephones, a library and a special car for "culture and rest."

Rome had rigid laws to regulate personal liberty about 200 B.C. The number of guests at parties, funeral costs and even the color of women's dresses were fixed by law.

Diana Wynyard
Starring Here

Capitol Theatre Featuring
Star of "Cavalcade" in
"Men Must Fight"

Something new in screen production is offered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in "Men Must Fight," featuring Diana Wynyard, Lewis Stone, Phillips Holmes, May Robson and Ruth Selwyn. And opening to-day at the Capitol Theatre. This studio, which has contributed such big pictures as "Ben Hur," "The Big Parade" and "Grand Hotel," now presents a picture which attempts to depict conditions in this country at the outbreak of a new war, presumably in 1940.

The picture is based on the Reginald Lawrence-S. K. Lauren play which caused widespread comment when produced on Broadway earlier this season. In deciding to bring this play to the screen, M-G-M's production minds enlarged upon possibilities which the stage producers, either through choice or the natural limitations of the speaking stage, passed up.

Also on the same programme is being shown Jack Holt in "When Strangers Marry."

Tom Mix Here
At Columbia

In his latest picture, "Terror Trail," which comes to the Columbia Theatre to-day, Tom Mix was seen last moving off the lot with his horses and sound equipment. Next he reported that his company from Lone Pine, California, while there, he made a location trip to Reno, Nevada, by airplane. On his return to Los Angeles, he loaded up more equipment and took his organization to Calabasas, California.

Also on the same programme is "Fast Life," with Madge Evans.

Mystery Comedy
At Playhouse

"Whistling in the Dark" is the feature attraction to-day at the Playhouse Theatre. It is a mystery comedy with Ernest Truex, one of the foremost comedians of the New York and London stage, and Una Merkel, supplying most of the laughs. For eleven solid months audiences laugh. Through the camera's added advantage in using Truex's unusual pantomime gifts, more comedy and suspense have been introduced in the screen production.

Also being shown on the same programme is Bill Boyd in "Lucky Devils."

DOMINION THEATRE

Tribute to the fidelity of character portrayed in "Rasputin and the Empress," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen production which is at the Dominion Theatre, was paid by Grand Duchess Marie, of Russia, herself a member of the once reigning Russian royal family.

"It gave me great satisfaction to see what a careful study both of events and of characters had been made in presenting this picture," said Grand Duchess Marie, after attending a screening of the film. "The sets and costumes are finely conceived and handled and the shades of characterization recreate vividly personalities of the period. The whole picture brings to one's mind very powerfully things which no longer exist."

KITSILANO BOYS'
BAND WILL PLAY

On Saturday night next another opportunity will be afforded for the hearing of the Kitsilano Boys' Band, the aggregation of young Vancouver musicians which received such high praise from the adjudicators at the recent musical festival.

The boys are paying another visit for the purpose of playing another concert at the City Temple. The engagement is part of an endeavor being made to raise a fund to cover the cost of sending the band to Chicago this summer, there to compete for the Junior world championship at the Century of Progress Exhibition.

At their last appearance in Victoria, a few weeks ago, the boys, by their magnificent playing, aroused much enthusiasm among those who heard them, and the demand for their return has been so insistent that Dr. Clem Davies has arranged this further opportunity for them to be heard.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The B.I.P. production, "That's My Uncle," showing at the Empire Theatre to-day, stars the popular comedian, Stanley Lupino, who is directed by his no less famous cousin, Lupino Lane. The story is adapted from the musical play of the same name, which had such a successful run at the Gaiety, London, and as may be expected from such a brilliant combination, the film is one long continuous roar of laughter.

ENGLISH COMEDY
OPENS TO-MORROW

Sydney Howard is at his very best in "It's a King," coming to the Empire Theatre Friday. The very absurdities of the story are matched by his innocent belief in the goodness of other people. Although temporarily adopted by Helgia as its king, he has no idea that he is being made a fool of. But he is, and a very charming fool, too.

Arlliss Feature
Opens Saturday

George Arlliss, as the star of "The Working Man," the Warner-Bros. production which comes to the Dominion Theatre Saturday next, offers some theories for the restoration of business, which are workable and eminently sound. The actor, as a shoe manufacturer, faced with the imminent threat of the falling business of his rival, with violent conviction, tells sales force what is needed to put business on a sound basis.

WITNESS LONG AGED RESIDENT OF SAANICH DIES

R. T. Sherwood, Missing Since Walker Inquiry in New York, Appears

Associated Press
New York, June 1.—Russell T. Sherwood turned his face toward the light of publicity to-day for the first time since he disappeared almost two years ago when he was wanted as an important witness in the investigation of the administration of James J. Walker, who resigned as mayor of New York City during that investigation.

Announcement was made for him that he would see the press "somewhere in New Jersey," the guide of the unidentified spot being none other than Col. C. C. United States Internal Revenue William Dugan.

The government has a $40,000 income tax claim against Sherwood, and it was believed to be because of this that Sherwood had got in touch with Dugan and had him arrange the interview.

Due to the resignation of John Crann, the Victoria Rotary Club will elect a nominee to the new directorate at the luncheon meeting next week. Nominations must reach the secretary before noon next Saturday. Next week's luncheon will also be marked by the attendance of members and their wives and lady friends.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Native Sons of Canada, Assembly No. 1, will meet this evening in their new quarters above Hatt's hardware store, Douglas Street.

A chorus rehearsal will be held at the City Temple at 8 o'clock this evening. All members of the choir are requested to attend.

At the Credit Grantors' Luncheon in Spencer's dining-room to-morrow, addresses will be given by four members on the conference recently held at Vancouver.

Kathleen Maude Discombe was granted a decree absolute against Leonard John Discombe to-day, W. C. Moresby, K.C., appeared for the petitioner. The case was undefended.

Rowles' Boys' Band will hold its usual band practice to-morrow evening at 7:30 o'clock at headquarters. All members are asked to be on time. Parents and friends will be welcomed.

Herbert J. Penderay and James H. Beatty, M.P.P., were appointed delegates from the Victoria Rotary Club to the international convention in Boston at the club luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

The Open Forum has issued a challenge to Hon. John Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, to debate the subject: "Are We Getting Education or Propaganda?" Mr. Hinchliffe will be asked to debate Education and P. A. Graham Propaganda.

Charge and counter-charge of assault against James Waters and Lloyd Lloyd were read in the City Court this morning and the case remanded one week. R. C. Lowe appears for Mr. Waters and Stuart Henderson for Mr. Lloyd.

Robert Harkness, the Australian composer—pianist, well known to a great number of the Victorians, will be heard in the following churches within the next few days: Friday, at 8 p.m., the Central Baptist; Sunday, at 3 p.m., Alliance Tabernacle; Sunday, at 8:30 p.m., and 8:30 p.m., First Baptist Church, and Monday, at 8 p.m., Cridge Hall.

Charged as the keeper of a disorderly house, following a police raid on premises at 506 Fort Street yesterday evening, Agnes Johnson pleaded guilty in the City Police Court to-morrow morning and was fined $10 or two months. Frances Gibson and Bernice Weston were fined $25 each as inmates. Three men were dismissed on charges of being found in the place.

Foul Bay Junior Community Association will stage the first of a series of fanned dances to-morrow evening at Margaret Jenkins School auditorium. Percy Payne will act as M.C. Reg Wood's orchestra will supply the music. Charles Harrison will preside at the refreshment booth. The dances are being organized to raise funds for the park in the district.

Two drivers fined $5 in the City Police Court this morning for reversing direction of their vehicles at intersections where "U" turns are not permitted, complained that the traffic signs indicating the regulation were not properly placed.

Police officials also pointed out that "U" turns are forbidden at the intersections of Fort and View Streets on Broad Street.

Saturday being a statutory holiday, post office arrangements will be as follows: Money order tickets will be closed all day. All other tickets will be open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. The post office lobby will be open as on ordinary week-days. Rural mail deliveries will be made as usual. All mails due to be despatched at 12 noon will be despatched at 1 p.m. Street letter box collections in the residential districts will be made and collections will also be made during the day in the downtown district. Letter carrier deliveries will be restricted to the downtown business section.

A bottle was found in Burrard Inlet on May 26 with a note reading as follows: "I am stranded on Table Island. Please come quick, very quick. I am hungry, very hungry. I am Bagley's partner. Table Island is at the entrance to Toquart Harbor. Barkley Sound. The message was neither dated nor signed. Another bottle was picked up near Pender Island and contained a rambling message, but was considered a hoax placed in the water by young boys. Police boat No. 7 is in the vicinity of Toquart Harbor and has been sent to investigate.

Another excellent selection of artists has been secured for the monthly meeting of the Welsh Society, to be held to-morrow evening in the S.O.E. Hall, Broad Street, at 8 o'clock. The following is the programme:

Includes vocal solos by Mrs. C. Williams, Mrs. W. C. Williams, A. Jackson, D. Williams; piano solos by Pat Campbell, tap dances by Ray Hunt; humorous act by Roy Smith and Co.; vocal duet by Mrs. W. C. Williams and Miss O. Jones; comic numbers by Stan James, recitations, Celia Lewis, a musical act by J. Pullin, and the "Tuneful Two," Bill Holmes and Bill Anderson. Refreshments will be served at the close and members are asked to bring cakes or sandwiches.

MAY SET NEW RELIEF SCALE
Agreement for Four Western Provinces Said to Be Under Consideration at Ottawa

Action by the Dominion Government in regard to request of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities for an extension of time in enforcing the new relief scale is being delayed at Ottawa, pending developments of the conference between the federal officials and premiers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, according to a message received by Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works.

Meanwhile it is understood that the new scale, which calls for the two governments to contribute 20 per cent of relief costs each, instead of 33-1/3 per cent, goes into effect to-day.

It was further stated that federal authorities are now seeking to arrive at the new scale of contributions to be applicable to the four western provinces. Little definite information on this is known however. It is understood, however, that such an agreement would destroy the latest Ottawa-British Columbia scale.

DEPARTED LIVES

Requiem Mass Sung at St. Andrew's in Presence of Vast Congregation

Seventy-fifth Anniversary Exercises Ended at St. Ann's This Afternoon

The memory of the pioneer nuns of St. Ann, who have died in British Columbia during the seventy-five years the sisters have been in Victoria, was honored this morning in St. Andrew's Cathedral when a solemn pontifical high mass of requiem was said by Bishop P. J. Monahan of Calgary, in the presence of more than 200 sisters, clergy from many outside points and a vast congregation.

Seated on thrones on the red-carpeted sanctuary Archbishop William Duke of Vancouver and Bishop Murray of Victoria, took no active part in the ceremonies this morning. Bishop Monahan was assisted by Rev. Father Birch, O.M.I., of Vancouver and Rev. Father Prange, S.J., of Seattle. Requiem mass was supplied by the sisters of St. Ann's Academy chapel.

Rev. William Lemmens spoke briefly, eulogizing the memory of those brave spirits who lived their lives in the quiet place, to reap the rewards earned by their labors in the mission fields of British Columbia. Special mention was made to their final resting place, to the four sisters who came to Victoria from Montreal in 1858.

Special mention was made to their final resting place, to the four sisters who came to Victoria from Montreal in 1858.

W. C. Moresby, K.C., native son of British Columbia, senior benchman and former president of the Bar Association, would spend a week shaking hands with all the friends who wished to extend him congratulations. Mr. Moresby has taken a keen interest in the welfare of the city, which he has served in many capacities. In his younger days he was a good athlete and is now keenly interested in sport. A prominent Conservative, Mr. Moresby may be seen in the field as an independent Conservative at the coming provincial election. He is a school trustee at present.

Arthur B. Christopher, 668 Monterey Avenue, manager of the Douglas Street branch of the Bank of Toronto, was born in Victoria twenty-eight years ago to-day.

Joe Dakers of the Customs Service, at one time an outstanding lacrosse and football player, chalks up another year to-day.

Fred Dillabough, 1310 Quadra Street, has a birthday to-day. Mr. Dillabough is president of the Pipers Golf Club. He is a member of the first James Bay Athletic Association senior fours to bring glory honors to Victoria.

Mrs. George March, 453 Dockeyard Road, received birthday congratulations from many friends to-day. Mrs. March was born in Scotland and came to Canada over twenty years ago. She lived in Esquimalt since that time and has taken an active interest in community affairs.

Another native daughter of Victoria, Miss Grace Bowden, of 718 Queen's Avenue, is celebrating her birthday to-day. She is an employee of the Hudson's Bay Company.

Among the visiting members of the clergy, beside those already mentioned, are Rt. Rev. E. M. Bunoz, D.D., O.M.I., Bishop of Prince Rupert; Rt. Rev. Bishop Crimont, O.J., Bishop of Juneau, Alaska; Rev. Father Piet, J. Port Townsend; Rev. Father J. J. of Portland; Rev. Father Maher, S.J., of Spokane; Rev. Father Anselm Wood, of Esquimalt; Rev. Cloverdale, June 1.—At the Liberal nominating convention for the Delta riding, Wednesday night, A. D. Peterson, former member for the constituency, was nominated on the second ballot, defeating Arthur Laing of Richmond.

Grand Forks, B.C., June 1.—Mayor T. A. Love of Grand Forks, will carry the Brown non-partisan banner in the provincial election for the Grand Forks-Greenwood riding. At a monster meeting Wednesday night, the largest ever held in the boundary, Mr. Love was the unanimous choice as candidate. The hall was packed to the doors. Mr. Gardner, Grand Forks businessman, occupied the chair.

An association was formed with G. Arthur Randall, Greenwood pioneer, as president, and Gordon McEwen of Midway, secretary-treasurer. Three from each polling division were named to act on the executive. Plans were laid for an immediate and active campaign.

DIED YESTERDAY
Julius Schultz, who came to Victoria a month ago from Lantz, B.C., passed away from the Jubilee Hospital yesterday evening. He is survived by his widow, at Spurling, B.C., three daughters, Mrs. Zarit, Happy Valley; Mrs. Evelyn, Victoria; and Mrs. M. H. Mortensen, at home, and one son, Eric, in Vancouver. Funeral services will be held from McCall Bros' Funeral Home on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Rev. J. Schumann officiating. Interment will be in Royal Oak Burial Park.

The British Columbia Library Association will have the following officers for the ensuing year: Miss Marjorie Holmes, provincial library, president; Miss J. Choate, Chilliwack, vice-president; Miss Muriel P. McPhee, Victoria, Public Library, secretary; and Miss Marjorie Sing, Vancouver, Public Library, member of the executive board.

Entertainment To Aid Jobless Musicians Held

A number of well-known musicians visited in the pleasing programme presented at the New Thought Temple yesterday evening under the direction of Mrs. Bella Dobree and in aid of unemployed musicians.

Dances were given by pupils of Madame Attfield of the Italian School of Music and Dancing, and also by pupils of the Russian Ballet School. A one-act comedy, selections by the Electric orchestra, and a string ensemble, as well as many solos, rounded out the entertainment.

Those taking part in the programme were: Dr. William Bryce, Leslie Jordan, H. C. Brown, George Highfield, Madame Dobree, Miss Ann Lyster, Madeline Franklin, J. W. Buckler, Mrs. Valiant, Miss Evelyn Valiant, Miss Dorothy Parsons, Fred Wright, Miss Grace Attfield, M. Thomas, Madame Scott-Burritt, Mrs. A. W. Stokes, Miss Barbara Hall, Rev. Christopher Fred and Henry Worthington.

Birthday Greetings

Are Extended To-day To—

MISS MAE LAMBERT
CAPT. STUART ROBERTSON
ARCHIE AITKEN
W. C. MORESBY, K.C.
ARTHUR B. CHRISTOPHER
JOE DAKERS
FRED DILLABOUGH
MISS GEORGE MARCH
MISS GRACE BOWDEN

Miss Mae Lambert, popular cashier of the Victoria office of the Confederation Life, is receiving congratulations to-day on her birthday anniversary. She was born in Regina, Sask., came here with her parents in 1912 and lives with them at the family home, Monterey Avenue.

Captain Stuart Robertson, who is prominent in returned soldier and militia circles, is observing another birthday to-day. He was born in Kenora, Ont., and has made a wide circle of associations since coming to Victoria to reside in 1918. He was one of the originals of the 16th Battalion overseas during the war. Since the war he has devoted himself untiringly to the militia and now commands C company First Battalion, Canadian Scottish. Capt. Robertson is married. He reviewed the year briefly, referring to the recent district conference, paying tribute to the Victorians who were responsible for its success. He wished his successors every success in the future.

W. C. Moresby, K.C., native son of British Columbia, senior benchman and former president of the Bar Association, would spend a week shaking hands with all the friends who wished to extend him congratulations. Mr. Moresby has taken a keen interest in the welfare of the city, which he has served in many capacities. In his younger days he was a good athlete and is now keenly interested in sport. A prominent Conservative, Mr. Moresby may be seen in the field as an independent Conservative at the coming provincial election. He is a school trustee at present.

Arthur B. Christopher, 668 Monterey Avenue, manager of the Douglas Street branch of the Bank of Toronto, was born in Victoria twenty-eight years ago to-day.

Joe Dakers of the Customs Service, at one time an outstanding lacrosse and football player, chalks up another year to-day.

Fred Dillabough, 1310 Quadra Street, has a birthday to-day. Mr. Dillabough is president of the Pipers Golf Club. He is a member of the first James Bay Athletic Association senior fours to bring glory honors to Victoria.

Mrs. George March, 453 Dockeyard Road, received birthday congratulations from many friends to-day. Mrs. March was born in Scotland and came to Canada over twenty years ago. She lived in Esquimalt since that time and has taken an active interest in community affairs.

Another native daughter of Victoria, Miss Grace Bowden, of 718 Queen's Avenue, is celebrating her birthday to-day. She is an employee of the Hudson's Bay Company.

Among the visiting members of the clergy, beside those already mentioned, are Rt. Rev. E. M. Bunoz, D.D., O.M.I., Bishop of Prince Rupert; Rt. Rev. Bishop Crimont, O.J., Bishop of Juneau, Alaska; Rev. Father Piet, J. Port Townsend; Rev. Father J. J. of Portland; Rev. Father Maher, S.J., of Spokane; Rev. Father Anselm Wood, of Esquimalt; Rev. Father Gillen, O.M.I., and Rev. Father Monahan, O.M.I., of Vancouver; Rev. Father Fahman, O.M.I., Mission City; Rev. Father Nichol, Vancouver; Rev. Father Menager, S.J., Alaska; Rev. Father Sweeney, Vancouver; Rev. Father Sweeney, Vancouver; Rev. Father Schellen, Saanich; Rev. Father Kennedy and Rev. Father Carey of Vancouver; Rev. Father Sobry, Victoria; Rev. Father Hanson, Saanich; Rev. Father H. Lemmens, Duncan; Rev. Father Verbeke, Victoria; Rev. Father Geurts, Kuper Island.

FINED FOR SALE OF HOME-BREW
William Smith Admits Guilt; Mrs. Queen Archment Also Convicted

Home brew at $1.50 a dozen was purchased by police officers from William H. Smith, 1300 Scott Street, according to their testimony in the City Police Court this morning when he was fined $300 or three months after pleading guilty to a charge of keeping beer for sale.

The brew was tested as 4.2 per cent alcohol by weight. Inspector John T. Boulton stated. Several tins containing beer in various stages of fermentation were discovered on the defendant's premises as well as numerous bottles of the finished product.

The inspector also stated the basement of the four-story building was fitted up like a "small brewery." A total of 200 bottles were found along with the other material. The defendant disagreed with the prosecution's estimate of eighty gallons as the amount of brew in the making.

Mrs. Queen Archment, 846 Courtney Street, was also fined $300 or three months when convicted of a similar charge. Police raided her place on May 14, shortly after midnight, and saw a number of persons drinking beer. Several tins of beer and bottles and part of quart of whisky.

Several officers testified how they had kept watch on the house previous to the raid. They saw a large number of people coming and going frequently. Some of the people were in various stages of intoxication, the witnesses declared. No defence evidence was entered.

Refuse to Work Owing to Regulations at Otter Point Relief Centre

Complaints against alleged "military discipline" has created trouble at the Otter Point Relief Camp for single men, according to reports reaching the city this morning.

It was stated 150 out of 180 men at the camp had refused to go to work and were on their way to the city to-day.

Both police and military officials refused to say much about the affair, but at Provincial Headquarters officers were standing by to await developments.

From other sources it was learned the men objected to numerous regulations laid down for operation of the camp, among them being that they should arise and salute at 8 o'clock in the morning. Continued protests without result culminated in the decision of the large majority of the men to walk out this morning, refusing to work. There was no disturbance.

OAK BAY ASKS OTTAWA ACTION
Waterworks Extension Project Hinges on Satisfactory Relief Settlement

The proposed waterworks extension in Oak Bay, whereby the municipality's water system would be connected with that of the City of Victoria and a twelve-inch main laid along Foul Bay Road at a tentative estimated cost of $12,000, depends to a considerable extent on the success of the municipality in getting Ottawa to revise its recently curtailed direct relief grant according to a statement emanating from Oak Bay municipal headquarters to-day.

The Oak Bay council is considering making the proposed extension part of its relief programme, but a spokesman for Reeve Mayhew points out that the municipal chest is not abounding with funds and that the project would be inadvisable if the Dominion Government sticks to its announced policy of contributing only 20 per cent, rather than the previous 67 per cent, of the direct relief costs of the municipality.

The Union of British Columbia Municipalities recently took the matter up in a general way with the governmental authorities and Oak Bay has separately placed its own particular case before Premier Tomin. The reply of Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, stating that consideration would be given Oak Bay's case, reached the Municipal Hall this morning.

Meanwhile, Oak Bay is marking time on the waterworks project in the hope that Ottawa will give some leadership in the matter and enable the municipality's jobless to be put to work on a useful construction item.

NEW OFFICERS GIVEN POSTS

Charles H. French and 1933 Rotary Directors Are Installed

Club's Work Reviewed in Annual Report; Presentation to G. McGregor

Officers of the Victoria Rotary Club for the ensuing year were installed in their respective posts by J. Percy Watson at the annual meeting in the Empress Hotel this afternoon.

Those installed were: Charles H. French, president; Sam Armstrong, vice-president; Alderman Walter Luney, vice-president; T. P. McConnell, treasurer; and Major W. C. Angus, J. V. Johnson and Duncan MacBride, directors. John Crann was also elected to the directorate, but was forced to resign owing to his removal to Vancouver.

Mr. French, retiring president, expressed his sincere thanks for the excellent support he had received from the membership during his tenure of office. He reviewed the year briefly, referring to the recent district conference, paying tribute to the Victorians who were responsible for its success. He wished his successors every success in the future.

INSTALL OFFICERS
The work of Rotary was referred to by Percy Watson in a brief address prior to the installation. The nature of Rotary work was corrective and was intended to sweeten the path of life, he stated. Under present conditions, he urged, the clubmen to have faith in God, sacrifice individual pride and do everything possible to put people to work. He referred to the fine selections made in choosing the members of the new board, all of whom had proven successful in business life.

Mr. French voiced the thanks of the new directorate for the honor accorded them. The high ideals of Rotary presented a challenge to the officers of the club, he said, and during their term of office they hoped to broaden their minds and develop tolerance, sympathy and complete understanding to retain the confidence of the membership and the general public.

PRESENTATION MADE
President French presented the past president, Mr. McGregor, with a diamond centred button as a token of the club's appreciation for his work. The presentation being followed by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Three cheers were given the retiring officers, after Alderman James Adam had moved a vote of thanks to them. The annual report of the club was presented by T. J. Goodlake, secretary, who was complimented by the new president for his untiring efforts in the interests of the local club and Rotary generally.

The report stated that fifty-two meetings had been held during the year. The membership had decreased four members. In the last twelve months, the club took over the support and management of the Victoria Boys' Band; donated to the welfare of the proceeds of a concert staged jointly with the Musicians' Union; and conducted a seed-growing contest for children, under the direction of the agricultural committee.

GUESTS AT LUNCHEON
The report contained votes of thanks to the club orchestra and the press for co-operation during the last twelve months.

Presidents of other service clubs in the city, who were guests at the luncheon included: J. B. Clearhill, Kiwanis; R. A. Lipsey, Gyro; Miss Margaret L. Clay, Business and Professional Women; A. W. Smith, Kiwanis; Miss Ainslie Russell, Soroptimists; and Major Chubb, British Columbia Council.

W. H. MUNCY TO HEAD FESTIVAL
Appointed For Third Term at Annual Meeting of Association Yesterday Evening

In next year's Victoria Musical Festival, scheduled for May 1 to 5 inclusive, there will be medals awarded to first-place winners but certificates will be given all junior competitors who obtain 80 per cent or over, it was announced by W. H. Muncy at the annual meeting in the City Hall yesterday evening.

Mr. Muncy was elected president of the festival association for the third successive year. All posts except that of corresponding secretary were filled by acclamation. Mrs. N. E. Fairweather and Miss F. A. Mitchell are the new recording and corresponding secretaries, respectively, succeeding Mrs. G. A. Hobden and Miss E. Dann, both of whom chose not to run again this year.

OTHER OFFICERS
Other officers for the ensuing year will be: L. A. Lape, first vice-president; Dr. Richard Felton, second vice-president; H. H. Hinton, third vice-president; P. A. Gibbs, treasurer; Miss Dunn, James Petrie and Sidney Chivers, jointly elected for three-year terms; J. H. Hinton, Gillespie, E. Parsons, H. A. Beckwith (two years of term to run); John Smith, Stanley Bulley and C. Routley (one year of term to run), directors.

In an annual report, Mr. Muncy stated that two new adjudicators had been appointed for work here. Dr. Percy Hull will judge the piano and singing, clearing while Julius Harrison will adjudicate the choral and vocal classes. In 1935, Maurice Jacobson and Dr. Armstrong will probably return here for the event.

The financial report showed a deficit of $114.17, which, when added to the overdraft from the 1932 festival, showed a total loss of $414.26 on the last two presentations.

VICTORIA GIRL QUIETLY WED
Miss Mary Dicastri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Dicastri, of Victoria, and Mr. George Ingelman Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Ingelman, of Vancouver, were quietly married yesterday at the registry office here.

St. Louis Cards And Chicago Are Tightening Race

Improve and Make Going Tough For Pittsburgh in National Baseball

Virtual Deadlock For First Place

New York Yankees and Washington Split Twin Bill
in Two Sluggests

With the improvement in the form of their western rivals, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs, the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates have found the going considerably tougher in the National League.

Pittsburgh could not do a thing yesterday as Chicago defeated them, 5 to 1, took the series three games to two and left the losers in a virtual tie with St. Louis for the league lead.

The Cubs now are only a game and a half behind the third-place New York Yankees.

The Cards, idle yesterday, were five points behind the Pirates. The other two National League games scheduled for today, Brooklyn and New York and Boston and Philadelphia, were halted by wet grounds.

LOTS OF HITTING

The leading American League struggle, New York Yankees against the second-place Washington Senators, remained unchanged as they split a doubleheader. The Senators took the opening slugfest, 12 to 7, and the Yankees came back in the second, winning 9 to 7. The two teams accumulated forty-nine hits, good for seventy-five bases, in the two games. All other American League clubs had an open date.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington, June 1.—In a pair of slugfest games, in which twelve pitchers worked in vain to stop the onslaught of the Yankees, the Senators were defeated by the Yankees, 12 to 7, in the first game, and the Yankees were defeated by the Senators, 9 to 7, in the second game.

Washington took the first by a rousing five-run rally in the eighth, after coming from behind to tie the score in the previous inning. Each team was forced to throw four pitchers into the battle.

In the second game, the Yankees' big guns opened up an eight-run lead in the first two innings. The contest brought forth a homer by Manager Joe Cronin, a three-bagger and a double by Ruth, and four other two-baggers.

First Game—R. H. E.
New York 12 12 2
Washington 7 9 1
Batteries—Ruffing, Moore, Gomez, Brown and Dickey, Jorgens, Crowder, Stewart, Thomas, McAfee and L. Sewell.

Second Game—R. H. E.

New York 9 10 1
Washington 7 9 1
Batteries—Pennock and Jorgens; Weaver, Russell, Burke and Berg.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pittsburgh, June 1.—Charlie Root, veteran right-handed pitcher, was stung by hits with men on bases as Chicago Cubs made the most of their seven blows to defeat Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 1, yesterday.

Although defeated, Pirates held to their lead in the National League, but only by the slim margin of five points over the idle St. Louis Cardinals.

LEAVE DIAMOND IN NINTH-PROTESTING AGAINST DARKNESS

retiring the next three batters in order without a run scoring.

SCORE FIVE RUNS

The Sons put on a real rally in the sixth and, before being retired, had chalked up five runs to their credit. Bacon started the procession by lacing the ball into left field for a single. He stole second. Holman walked. Bacon advanced to third on a wild pitch by Carr. Holman stole second. Bacon scored on Vandy's ground out to Bannion. Barnes walked, and pilfered the keystone bag. Porters struck out, protesting the third called strike. Hilton's single to right field scored Holman and Barnes. Hilton stole a base to reach second. Bacon scored on Musgrave's single to right field. Musgrave reached third when Williams let the ball go through him to the fence. Musgrave completed the circuit on Restall's error, and scored. Bacon struck out. The first baseman being off the sack to take Constable's throw from third on Craig's grounder. Doherty grounded to Bannion to end a disastrous inning for Slings.

Slings missed a good chance to score in the seventh when Bannion reached third with nobody out, on an error and stolen base, but was caught flat-footed at the plate when another "squeeze play" fell through. Robinson at bat making no attempt to hit the ball.

SUDDEN ENDING

No further scoring was seen until the hectic ninth inning. After Slings had retired the Sons went to bat still one run behind. Craig beat out a hit to Bannion and Doherty followed with a single behind shortstop. Bacon lined to Constable. Holman was safe on an error by Bannion and the bases were filled. Gandy's single through the box sent Craig home with the tying run, and leaving the bases still loaded. At this point the entire Slings team left the field and Doherty trotted home with the winning run.

Yethel Carr pitched a smart game for Slings, and except for the sixth inning, held the Sons' sluggers well in check. He had a wide variety of hook balls working to perfection. Carr struck out five, walked four and allowed ten hits. Shakespeare, who started for the Sons and was yanked in the third, was nicked for three hits and five runs, walked five and struck out two. Musgrave allowed three hits and one run, whiffed nine and walked three.

Hilton, Sons' third sacker, led the bunch for the evening with three out of four.

AUTO OWNERS MAKE PROTEST

Object to Standings of Two Cars in Tuesday's Race at Indianapolis

Prize Money Distribution and Drivers' Dinner Are Both Called Off

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—Distribution of prize money to winners in Tuesday's 500-mile automobile race here was withheld yesterday evening and the drivers' dinner called off when two protests were filed against decisions of the officials as to the manner in which the cars finished.

Alden Sampson, Van Nuys, Cal., challenged the right of Lou Moore, Los Angeles driver, to third money on the ground Moore's car was disqualified automatically when it allegedly lost an exhaust pipe extension. Sampson owns the car in which Chet Gardner, Long Beach, Cal., was declared by officials to have finished fourth.

"Art Rose, Indianapolis, maintained his entry, piloted by Dave Evans, Columbus, Ind., finished fifth instead of sixth. The officials Wednesday declared Stubby Stubbsfield, Los Angeles, the winner of fifth place.

If It Wasn't For—

BY AL DEMAREE

THIS ALMOST UNIVERSAL
GOLF GRIP MIGHT NEVER HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED

BY AL DEMAREE

Harry Vardon, the old English master golf stylist originated the golf grip that bears his name. It is the orthodox grip of the golf world to-day and outside of a few experts like Chick Evans, who uses the palm grip, and Gene Sarazen, who hangs out his amazing shots with an interlocking grip, it is the universal golf standard.

Vardon was one of golf's immortals. A master with every club, his admirers often claimed he was more accurate with a brassie than other stars with a mashie.

ISLAND LEAGUE STAGING EVENTS

Four Provincial Titles Will Be at Stake in Garden Gala on Labor Day

Plans for staging the one-mile swim, sponsored by the William Wrigley Jr. Company in Victoria on Saturday, September 2, were discussed at a meeting of the Vancouver Island Swimming League yesterday evening. The officials also laid plans for a big gala at the Crystal Garden on Labor Day, September 4, when four British Columbia championships will be at stake.

The Wrigley swim, which last year was held in Vancouver, comprises two events: one for men and the other for women. The route is one mile, and it is expected that the event will be staged in the inner harbor, between the Point Ellice Bridge and the Causeway, in order to afford sufficient space for spectators.

VANCOUVER HOLDS TITLE

The trophies for the races are the handsome Wrigley Cups, won last year by Jack Gear and Agnes Martin, both of Vancouver. The only Victorian to place last year in the race at English Bay was Carrie Grey, who for several years was the first woman to finish in the Times through-Victoria swim.

With the races being held here this year, however, some keen competition is anticipated from local aquatic stars, and a large delegation of Vancouver aspirants will be on hand.

The title races to be staged at the Garden in conjunction with the Labor Day gala are the men's backstroke, men's breast stroke, women's relay and women's breast stroke.

MAINLANDERS COMING

The first two events, and the women's breast stroke, are 100 yard races, while the relay consists of a team of four, swimming 200 yards.

Vancouver swimmers will also participate in the gala. These two events are expected to be the leading swim meets to be held in Victoria this year, and are being eagerly awaited by Victoria enthusiasts.

Les Patrick Back To Spend Summer

Lester Patrick, vice-president of the New York Rangers Hockey Club in the National Hockey League, returned to his home in Victoria yesterday afternoon, after attending a meeting of the National Hockey League, in New York recently. Lester plans to spend the summer with his family and will leave to resume his hockey duties at Madison Square Garden early in the fall.

Lester declared the meeting of the N.H.L. was a successful one but declined to make any announcement relative to the appointment of his brother Frank as managing director of the N.H.L.

To Blast Abe Takes Club Back Outside

By JOE GLASS

To use the slicing stroke when exploding from a sand-trap you have to hit from outside the direction line toward the inside. But how will you take care of your backswing? Will you take the club back on the line of direction, or inside it, and then force it outside the line of direction on the downswing? Or will you do as Abe Mitchell, the old British star, does? He takes the clubbed BACK outside the line of direction. This seems a good idea, because then he does not have to make a shift at any stage of his swing. You might try his plan out.

Mitchell and many other stars are apt to keep the right hand underneath the shaft as much as possible when exploding. This causes the club face to close after the sand has been hit and tends to keep the ball going in the proper direction. (Copyright, 1933, Publishers Syndicate)

When Fire Sirens Ring!!

Answers to Traffic Situation No. 3

(Illustrated on Page 7)

Where cautionary signs are erected car "X" would be in serious error, as no left hand turn is permitted at any intersection, so marked, where traffic control signals are installed. In any event, car "X" should proceed north and immediately come to a standstill as near as possible to right hand curb, unless otherwise directed by a police officer.

Street car "E" must cross intersection and stop at a distance of at least 75 feet beyond intersection. For the same reason street car "A" must stop 75 feet south of intersection.

"B" and "C" continue south and stop near curb. "D" turns west and pulls in to curb. All others remain at a standstill. Fire engines may, if necessary, pass through safety zone.

This series is offered to the motoring public as a friendly contribution to the safety of drivers and pedestrians everywhere in British Columbia. Answers are based either on Provincial Motor Vehicle Act regulations or, where they so apply, on City bylaws. In some instances, local bylaws may differ slightly from the above, but the principles governing safe driving apply equally in crowded thoroughfares and to all highways serving the lesser populated districts.

Wheat Recovers At Mid-session, Gains Being Fractional

Winnipeg, June 1.—Continuing a recovery that started at mid-session, wheat futures moved upward swiftly in the closing minutes to finish 1/4 cent lower on the Winnipeg Grain Market to-day.

All-session-long pressure of selling lifted in the final dealings and futures recovered most of an early 1 1/2-cent setback. May option ended at 64 1/2, July 66 1/2, and December 68 1/2.

Induced by weakness in Liverpool where values showed 1 1/4 to 1 1/2-cent declines, wheat futures here seldom showed signs of recovery from their opening setback of more than one cent. Operations were mostly of a local nature, outside traders displaying little interest in the market.

FORD'S SURPLUS IS $611,079,680

Concord, N.H., June 1.—The Ford Motor Company, in a statement filed with the New Hampshire Secretary of State to-day, reported a surplus of $611,079,680 as compared with $668,614,115 in 1932, a reduction of $57,534,435. The net worth of the company was placed at $225,344,180.

MONTREAL C.P.R. CLOSING AT 173-4

Montreal, June 1.—With a late upturn in Canadian Pacific and Montreal Power, prices on the Montreal Stock Exchange closed higher to-day despite profit-taking.

Canadian Pacific Railway broke through to a new high for the year closing at 173 1/4, with a gain of 1 1/4 points. Consolidated Smelters finished the day at 130, up 1/4 points.

Nickel, Shawinigan Power and National Breweries were among the leaders to record fractional advances. B.C. Packers gained more than 1/2 point, while McGill-Frontenac and Quebec Power were off small amounts.

TORONTO GOLD SHARES SOFTEN

Toronto, June 1.—Mining stocks started the new month with prices steady and with volume up above the 2,000,000 mark. Scattered profit-taking pared prices somewhat at the close.

Lake Shore dropped about 1/2 point, 25 cents, Hollinger 15 cents, McIntyre 25 cents and Teck and Hargreaves a few cents. Metal shares closed with advance: Nickel up 30 to 1740, Noranda up 85 cents to 83, and Hudson Bay up 35 to 1035.

Leading junior gold shares dropped 1 to 5 cents.

Wayside, a recent British Columbia listing, lost 8 cents, at 55.

Silver shares were quiet.

CARIBOO GOLD DEVELOPMENT

Complete Financial Arrangements Announced By President of Company

Vancouver, June 1.—Complete financial arrangements for extensive development of Cariboo Gold quartz mine in the Cariboo, providing for a large mill from 900 to 1,000 tons daily capacity, are announced to-day by Dr. W. B. Burnett, president of the company. With all liabilities paid, the company has now funds available of about $250,000, he stated.

A large part of the money is actually now in the hands of the company. The arrangement has been made with strong financial parties who have made an outright purchase of a block of the company's treasury stock. The actual cash realized is expected to be much in excess of the cost of developing the underground workings and blocking out the ore necessary for the production of sufficient mill-feed to keep the larger mill in operation.

New equipment is to be sent to the property immediately and additional men are to be put to work, running three shifts a day.

The arrangement also provides that the same financial interests will take additional treasury stock to provide for the cost of the mill, but at a substantially higher price than at present prevailing.

The intention is that the initial steps for the large new mill will be taken toward the end of this year.

The current production of about $1,000 worth of gold per day remains the property of the company, not being leased or optioned in any way by the new financial interests who have put up the new money for development.

D. H. Solbakke, one of the directors, is in London, and is making arrangements to have Cariboo Gold stock listed on the London Stock Exchange. A considerable quantity of shares is already held in England.

CANADIAN Heavy Buying In Metals Shares On Wall Street Mart

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE THURSDAY, JUNE 1

The New York Stock Exchange was resting easy to-day with several good gains in some of the shares. Sales for the day totaled 4,200,000. The closing Dow Jones averages were as follows:

Thirty Industrials—89.10, up .39.
Twenty Utilities—43.40, up .38.
Twenty Chemicals—43.40, up .38.
At 2 o'clock this afternoon thirty Industrials and twenty utilities were quoted at 89.76, up 1.85, and 42.95, up .33 respectively.

Most equity groups followed a rather narrow range, but the metals responded to copper's revival with advances of around one to three points. Among the best of these were Anaconda, U

Mental, Not Chronological, Age Should Determine Whether Youth and Middle-age Should Marry — Shall Wife Who Adores Child Leave Husband She Hates?

DEAR MISS DIX—Should a girl who is only nineteen marry a man of forty-two? The man is a successful lawyer, likes to read and study and does not care for sport. The girl is a last year's high school graduate, very beautiful and younger than her years because her parents have never allowed her to go about with boys. This man is her first date. The girl's family have urged her to marry him because the man is rich. The girl thinks she is in love with the man now, but I am wondering how she will feel if real love should come along, and even about how companionable they will be now. Do you not think that she should wait until she has had a summer with him and she has tested her love under a pale moon with a lover at her side whose fire of youth has not so nearly burnt out?

Answer—I think it is a very risky thing for any girl to marry a man more than twice her age, and that it is exceptionally risky in a case where the man is a student and the girl one who has had no unusual experience. It would be nothing short of a miracle if such a marriage was not a disappointment to both parties and did not end disastrously.

There are cases, of course, in which the temperaments of the man and woman can safely span the gulf of age between them. Age is not always a matter of chronology, and there are girls of nineteen who are as old and mature as women of thirty or thirty-five. Sometimes they were just born "settled," with no instinctive desire for running about and dancing and having good times. Sometimes they are precocious youngsters who have been brought up with boys and having dates since they were thirteen, and have really had their fill and know men and what they want in a husband.

Sometimes a man at middle age is still a boy in reality. He is still young at heart and likes to play about with youngsters and go places and do things.

When this man, who is younger than his age, and this girl, who is older than her age, meet, they are really on a common platform and the years between them do not matter.

But in the case you describe this is not the situation. The man acts his age. He is a student, interested in books and quiet things, and doubtless he would expect his wife to settle down to a dull evening at home with their books. Probably he has had his gay times and he is satisfied with parties and night clubs and the bright spots.

But the girl has been nowhere. She has seen nothing. She has had no good times. She is eager for life and all its pleasures. She wants to play about and have a good time, and her idea of happiness is not going to be a quiet evening at home doing some improving reading.

Worse still, she probably is not really in love with her middle-aged suitor. Every girl is flattered out of her senses when a man much older than herself falls in love with her, and she easily mistakes this thrill of gratified vanity for love. But she finds out the difference soon enough when some boy of her own age comes along and gives her a kiss that is hot with passion, instead of the cool peck on the cheek of placid affection of her middle-aged beau. Then there is the mischief to pay with three lives messed up.

Any man of forty-two should have enough intelligence to know that if he marries a young girl they are bound to bore each other to death. What have they in common? Nothing. Absolutely nothing. What does nineteen care for intellectual conversation, about the delights of quiet meditation, about placid evenings around the lamp? Nothing. It wants to be kicking up its heels and laughing and giggling and rushing from place to place.

And does forty-two want to be dragged out to some place of amusement every evening? How will he enjoy the society of callow boys and girls who talk a jargon he does not understand, and who are never happy unless they are tearing around in high-powered cars from place to place? The two just do not jibe and they are foolish to even think of tying themselves together in the holy bonds of wedlock.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband and I are exceedingly fond of our only child, who is ten years old, but as much as we love the child we hate each other. I have often intended leaving my husband but my love for my child has prevented me from doing so. Now, after another bitter quarrel, I am desperate. What would you advise me to do? Leave the child and the husband and seek happiness somewhere else, or stay with the child and husband and be miserable forever?

Answer—If you leave your husband and child, where are you going to seek happiness, and how do you expect to find it? Do you think that anything you could do or any place you could go would cause you to cease to miss the child that is a part of your very heart or that you would be content away from him?

You could not go so far but what the cries of "mother" would follow you. There would never be any hour of any day in which you would not grow cold with fear wondering if the child was sick or if it was properly taken care of or if it was being taught to forget you, perhaps to hate you. You might find peace away from your husband, but there would be no happiness if you were separated from your child.

The most terrible mistake that women make is in believing that there is some magic in divorce that will restore them to their youth and beauty and make them gay and light-hearted girls again, and put them back into the same environment in which they were before they married. This never happens. There is no going back in life, no restoring things to what they once were. Marriage changes a woman past even her own recognizing. So do not deceive yourself into thinking that all you need to make you blissfully happy is just to get rid of your husband. Nine women out of ten who leave their husbands regret it. They find that the world is harder to get along with than even a cranky husband.

Before you decide to apply for a divorce, sit down quietly and calmly and do two things. First, count the cost. The agony of losing your child, the wretched mother who will cry out for it day after day and that nothing that you can do will ever satisfy. As long as you have your child you have something over which to be happy. Parted from it you will have nothing. Consider also that now you have a comfortable home. How can you support yourself when you are dependent on your own efforts for your bread and butter? When you are hungry and shabby and living in a miserable hall bedroom and dreading even being put out of that, do you not think you will wonder why you let a man's grudge and temper worry you so much?

Then try to think out what it is that you and your husband quarrel so violently about. Nine times out of ten husbands and wives fall out and break up their homes over some silly little difference of opinion, or because one has ways that the other did not like or because one resented criticism or thought that the other was unjust. These may be difficult things to put up with, but any one of them could be avoided by the use of a little tact or ignored because something else was so much more important. The welfare of a child, say.

But if you and your husband are going to quarrel all the time, separate, not because you will find happiness, but for the good of the child. It wrecks a child physically and mentally and spiritually to be brought up in a home of discord, and if a husband and wife cannot control their tempers they should, at least, save the child by parting. Better no parents at all than two that fight.

Chemainus

Chemainus, June 1.—C. Savory was elected vicar of the Church of St. Michael and all Angels Saturday evening, in place of K. Dodson, who is leaving for Vancouver. A social evening was enjoyed, entertainment being in the form of a musical programme, games and old-fashioned dances.

Mrs. Dodson, who has been prominent in the Junior Woman's Association and the Talent Club, was presented with a bouquet of flowers. The ladies of the church committee served refreshments.

On Monday a card party and dance was held under the auspices of Review No. 19 W.B.A. in the K. of P. Hall. Eleven tables of whist were in play. The following won prizes: Ladies, first, Mrs. S. White; consolation, Mrs. J. Matheson; gentlemen, first, J. Matheson; consolation, Mr. Warren. Music for the dance was supplied by Mrs. D. Murray and D. Cochrane.

Uncle Wiggily and the White Board

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"What are you going to do with your blackberries, Uncle Wiggily?" bleated Billie the goat as she with the other animal boys, walked along with the rabbit gentleman toward the Hollow Stump School one day.

"Well, I don't exactly know," Mr. Longears answered. "I was out looking for an adventure with this basket which Nurse Jane had given me to carry a pie to Mrs. Twistytail, the lady pig. On my way back with the empty basket, I saw the blackberries so I thought I would pick them. And I want to thank you boys for helping me."

"Oh, that's all right," barked Jackie Bow Bow. "We were glad to do it for you."

"Blackberries make nice pie," said Sammie the rabbit.

"So they do," chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "And if I can get Nurse Jane to make these berries into a pie I'll give a piece to each of you boys for having helped me."

"That will be swell!" meowed Tommie Kat, a pussy boy.

"What's that white stuff on your paw, Peetie?" asked Uncle Wiggily all of a sudden as he looked at the doggie boy.

"Oh, that's why—er—that's paint," said Peetie. He didn't know it was on his paw. All the other animal boys quickly looked at their paws to see if they had any white paint on. Sammie saw some on his left paw and, quickly, he thrust it into his pocket.

"White paint, eh?" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "Were you painting something, Peetie?"

"Uncle Wiggily," quickly exclaimed Jackie, before his brother had a chance to answer. "How soon do you think Nurse Jane could make the blackberry pie?"

"Oh, perhaps by to-morrow," said Mr. Longears.

"Please ask her to make a big one," begged Billie.

"And have it sweet," said Peetie. "I will," promised Uncle Wiggily.

Then he and the animal boys got to talking about blackberry pies and nothing more was said about white paint just then. For which Sammie and the others were glad. They didn't want Uncle Wiggily to know that the night before, they had sneaked into the Hollow Stump School and had painted the blackboard white so any mistakes they made in their school work couldn't be seen by the Lady Mouse Teacher. White chalk marks wouldn't show on a white board, they thought.

Soon Uncle Wiggily and the animal boys were at the school. Miss Mouse sat in her chair at her desk and as the animal boys and girls marched in she never said a word about the white blackboard. Nor did any of the animal boys who had done the painting show, by word or sign, that they knew something was wrong.

But some of the other animal boys, who had nothing to do with the trick, and all of the girl animal pupils, why they gave gasps of surprise as they saw the white blackboard.

"Take your seats, children," directed Miss Mouse. And then, as she saw Uncle Wiggily, with his basket of blackberries, she added:

"Welcome to my class, Mr. Longears. Won't you come in and hear the kindergarten class sing?"

"Yes, I'll hop in for a few minutes, I must hurry back to my bungalow, thank you," said Uncle Wiggily. Then Nurse Jane is going to make a blackberry pie and I'm going to give pieces to the animal boys who helped me pick the berries."

"That will be nice," squeaked Miss Mouse.

Then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily looked at the white board for the first time, and he exclaimed:

"Oh, Miss Mouse! Your blackboard is white!"

"So it is," squeaked the Teacher as if she had just noticed it.

"Who did it?" asked the rabbit.

"I have no idea," said Miss Mouse, although she might have guessed.

"A white blackboard," murmured Mr. Longears. "White chalk will make no marks on it."

"That's right!" whispered Billie the goat. "And we won't have to go to the board and make mistakes and be kept in after school."

But, all of a sudden, while the tricky animal boys who had put on the white paint were laughing to themselves, Uncle Wiggily held up his basket of berries and said:

"I will make your board black again, Miss Mouse. I'll rub some juice of my blackberries over the white paint. Then, when it is black, the boys can make white chalk marks on it and no more lessons."

And so it happened. Quickly Mr. Longears made the white board black again. Miss Mouse smiled as she sent the animal boys up to chalk their lessons. Not a word could give the right answers, so they were all kept in after school again. Then Miss Mouse helped the bunny pick more blackberries and Nurse Jane made her a fine pie.

And if the dusting brush doesn't go swimming in the bottle of Ketchup and paint the kitchen sink blue, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the real rose.

Simple Egg Tricks

Long, long ago, people said, "You cannot make an egg stand on end," but there are at least three ways in which this can be done. You may be able to figure out other methods.

The simplest method is one which legend tells us was used by Christopher Columbus—to stand the egg after cracking one end.

Let us try to stand an egg on end. Using salt to stand an egg

That way is hardly a trick, for there is no mystery about it.

Another method requires pinch of salt, a table with a white cloth, and some friends with the patient to watch pick up an egg and ask:

"Can any of you stand this egg on end?"

It is not likely that they will be able to do so.

Then place the egg on a spot where (secretly) you have dropped a little salt, and you should be able to stand it on end.

Practice the trick in advance. When you perform it for friends, brush the salt aside before they come too close. In their efforts to learn how you did it, Howard Thurston says that a young magician should not repeat his tricks in front of the same audience.

If, by mischance, your audience should find out that you used salt, you may puzzle them on another day with a trick along the same lines. When an egg is shaken thoroughly, the yolk and the white are mixed, and the egg (which is heavier) tends to sink to the bottom. An egg thus treated can be made to stand on end without the help of salt.

Let your friends try to stand an ordinary egg on end; then produce an egg which you have shaken and have concealed somewhere (with broad end down), and stand it up. Do not use your pocket as a hiding place for such an egg—that might lead to an accident!

If you are skillful, you may be able to spin a hard-boiled egg; but I have never heard of anyone who could spin a fresh egg on end. Place half-a-dozen fresh eggs on a table and let your friends try their luck at spinning them. When no one is watching you, add a hard-boiled egg to those on the table, and asked the rest to let you prove how easy it is to perform the trick.

STATE CONTROL OF ARMAMENTS

Recommended By Victoria Branch of League of Nations Society

Dean Quainton Re-elected President at Annual Meeting

Dean Quainton was re-elected president of the Victoria branch of the League of Nations Society at its annual general meeting yesterday evening at the Crystal Garden auditorium.

Other officers re-elected by acclamation were A. S. Averill, vice-president; Stephen B. Lloyd, honorary secretary; and Capt. Walter Brown, honorary treasurer. Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson, Lieut.-Governor of British Columbia was again made patron.

State control of arms manufacture and the abolition of private armament concern formed the basis of a resolution which was adopted unanimously. The resolution, which is to be forwarded to Premier Bennett at Ottawa reads as follows:

"Resolved that the Victoria branch of the League of Nations Society in Canada urges the government of the Dominion of Canada to instruct its delegates to the World Disarmament Conference to do everything possible to obtain a mutual agreement that all nations will undertake to carry out the necessary steps to prohibit the private manufacture of primary war equipment and will assume control of the export of all war material, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Prime Minister of Canada and the Leader of His Majesty Most Loyal Opposition."

WET VOTE GIVEN IN NEW JERSEY

Associated Press

Trenton, N.J., June 1.—New Jersey wants the eighteenth amendment (United States prohibition law) out of the constitution and says so today.

A definite wet sentiment, growing in recent years until repeal was supported by both the major state party organizations, resulted in election of 224 wet delegates of a total of 226 to a repeal convention.

New Jersey, forty-sixth state to ratify the prohibition amendment, is among the first eight to show repeal sentiment, either in convention or in election of delegates. The other states are Delaware, Nevada, New York, Rhode Island, Wyoming, Wisconsin and Michigan.

This state was the fifth to elect delegates to a convention, those pledged to repeal receiving an average of 573, 332 votes and the drys, 90,743 in the polling yesterday.

FOREIGN MISSION FUNDS DECREASE

Canadian Press

Moos Jaw, Sask., June 1.—Reduced incomes for foreign missions have created a serious situation in the foreign mission field. It was reported today at the conference of the Saskatchewan section of the United Church of Canada, in session here.

It was shown the foreign mission board was receiving less from the United Church now than was given by either the Presbyterian or Methodist churches before the union. Eight mission fields were suffering through lack of funds.

A large theatre, the Palace of Silence, is being built in Moscow for its deaf and dumb inhabitants.

Obstinate Cases of Hemorrhoids (Piles)

A well-known physician in his hospital and private practice discovered that the prescription now known as Moore's Emerald Oil diluted with equal parts of ordinary Olive Oil, will help to reduce the most obstinate case of piles with just a few applications, and stop all itching, burning, bleeding and distress.

Sufferers should get a bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil and begin the treatment at once. It is a remedy that is easily applied, and the first application gives instant relief and comfort. All good druggists have it, or can get it for you on short notice. For sale by MacFarlane Drug Co., B.C. Drugs Ltd. (Advt.)
